Joint Trial Asked

MEMPHIS, TENN. – Shelby County Attorney General Phil Canale has filed a criminal court motion asking that Joel Montgomery, Sikeston banker, and Betty Sells be tried together in connection with the traffic death of Miss Glenda Wiles in a two-car collision at a Memphis street intersection Oct. 14, 1959.

As it stands both are scheduled for trials to begin May 2.

The two are charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Miss Sells' attorneys are expected to oppose the joint trial motion.

Montgomery ended a four-year extradition fight Feb. 15 with a surprise flight from Sikeston to Memphis, where he turned himself over to authorities.

Montgomery's attorneys had no comment.

Construction will begin in eight weeks. Land preparation will begin immediately.

The church has an option to purchase the land from Bill Huff for $45,000.

A $260,000 church building will be the first step in development of the site. This first building will occupy seven acres in the center of the development.

Earnest money for the site has already been paid to Huff.

The first building will have two stories.

The first story will include: portico, foyer, women's parlor, two kitchens, nursery, reception room, powder room, general office, pastor study, library, conference room, men's toilet, supply work room, records room, four adult class rooms, temporary sanctuary and fellowship room, janitor and general storage room, mechanical equipment room, pantry, baptistry, two dressing rooms, facilities for the choir, piano and organ.

The former agent, Archie P. Sherar, testified last week before a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., that he had been ordered to falsify records in a 1962 tax dispute between clients of a San Francisco accountant, Nathan Friedman, and the IRS. Sherar said he believed Friedman was a personal friend of former IRS Commissioner Mortimer M. Caplin.

In a letter sent Wednesday to Long, Cohen said Sherar had been discharged "because he refused to cooperate and furnish records for the audit of his own tax returns."

He said: "There is no foundation to the allegation of a personal relationship" between Caplin and Friedman.

$90,000 Loan for Water System

NEW MADRID -- A $90,000 loan to 156 New Madrid County rural families to develop a public water system has been approved by the Farmers Home Administration, J. E. Jose, state director, Columbia, announced today.

About 750 persons will be served in the water district.

The loan will enable public water supply district one to develop a distribution system that will provide water to residents of Howardsville, South Lilbourn, and the farm area between the two towns.

The district has a long-term agreement to purchase up to 30,000 gallons of water daily from Lilbourn.

The FHA loan makes it possible for the district to supply water to rural families at the same rates charged in Lilbourn.

Untreated water has been obtained in the post in the area from shallow wells, which is subject to pollution danger.

The plan for the water system has been approved by the Missouri health department.

In addition to water for domestic purposes, the plan provides for 16 fire hydrants which will supply limited fire protection.

The FHA loan will be repaid over 35 years.

Officers of the association are -David E. Ragan, president; Willie B. Hamilton, vice president; William B. Crow, Donald Schaffer, and Travis B. Howard.

Daylight Savings Time Fans Happy

ST. LOUIS AP -- Daylight savings time lovers in St. Louis hailed results Wednesday of elections in 11 other Missouri cities in which voters indicated approval of "fast time" for this summer.

"This is a strong indication of the growing awareness of the benefits of daylight savings time," said Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the Chamber of Commerce of metropolitan St. Louis.

St. Louis has had DST in the summer for years and many of the area's recreational programs depend on it for an extra hour of light.

Recently, Congress passed a bill putting the whole nation on daylight savings time unless individual state legislatures vote to put their state on standard time.

Missouri congressmen failed in an attempt to modify the bill so that portions of a state -such as eastern Missouri- could go on DST while the rest of the state stayed on standard time.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce embarked on a program to sell DST to the rest of Missouri in hopes the legislature wouldn't kill the plan for St. Louis.

Kaufmann said the Chamber is planning a "vigorous educational program next fall" throughout the state.

Tuesday, 11 cities, most of them in southeast Missouri, approved DST in straw votes. Only one-Malden - turned it down by 10 votes.

Approving DST in principle were Charleston, Dexter, Chaffee, Lilbourn, Sikeston, East Prairie, New Madrid and Morehouse in Southeast Missouri and Rolla, Fulton and Jefferson City in the central section.

Their city governments still must take formal action.

Most of the cities voting decided to have fast time begin on Memorial Day and end Labor Day. In St. Louis, it will begi April 24 and end the last Sunday in October. These are the dates mentioned in the new federal law.

Kendall Sikes was re-appointed mayor yesterday by the newly organized city council. This will be his second one-year term.

The canvass of Tuesday's city election votes did not change the unofficial results in which Harry Dudley was reelected and Lee C. Shell was elected to the city council.

Absentee ballots gave Councilmen Harry Dudley 18 votes; Lee C. Shell, 8; Elmer Russell 1 and Walter Ancell, 10.

Total official vote gave the winners Dudley, 365 and Shell, 1,056 votes. Ancell received 697 and Russell, 585.

Rioters Burn Jeep

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- Hundreds of antigovernment demonstrators poured toward downtown Saigon tonight and burned a U. S. military police jeep a few hours after Buddhist leaders demanded that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime pledge publicly to give way to a civilian government in five or six months.

No Americans were reported injured.

"End the war immediately," said one of the banners carried by the demonstrators.

A battalion of paratroopers waded into the rioters and sent them scurrying down side streets. Some began regrouping to continue their descent on the downtown area in the fifth continuous day of unrest in the capital's streets.

The Buddhist hierarchy earlier instructed its militant young supporters to remain quiet until the junta replied to turn over power to a popularly elected constituent assembly within five or six months.

The Buddhist statement said the government has promised this privately.

Hopes that the month-long political crisis was easing a bit were jolted when 500 demonstrators emerged from the Buddhist compound on the outskirts of the city. As they marched toward the center of the city with their familiar anti-government banners, they attracted hundreds of supporters.

CHRISTIANITY'S BIRTHDAY

It's a fine time of year. The quickening of spring is on the land and April 10 will be Easter Sunday. We are reminded of Irving Berlin's famous song, Easter Parade. The lyrics paint a vivid picture of the lighter side of this day and the melody comes back to our mind as we read the words--"In your Easter bonnet, with all the frills upon it, You'll be the grandest lady in the Easter Parade." The musical genius of Mr. Berlin and the appalling inventiveness of the female mind have combined to make the Easter bonnet a kind of contemporary symbol of the observance of Easter. Tens of millions of Christians attending church on Easter Sunday morning may have a new bonnet, many millions more around the world will not, but the meaning of the day will be the same for all. Following the crucifixion, Christ rose in both body and spirit and Christianity was born.

For those of us who live in the northern hemisphere, it seems fitting that this time should come in the spring of the year--a time for new bonnets and for rebirth and growth after the rigors of winter. And for Christians everywhere, it is a time of rededication and renewed faith in the way of the Lord as a guide to a better life and a peaceful world.

HYPERTENSION AND CORONARY RISK

Going up?

Your blood pressure, that is.

It could be creeping up quietly, without your being aware of it. Unless you have had it checked recently by a doctor.

This is definitely not a case of "what you don't know won't hurt you," the Missouri Heart Association warns. Not only can hypertension (the medical name for high blood pressure) do serious damage to blood vessels, heart and kidneys; it also considerably increases the patient's risk of developing coronary heart disease.

A scant 15 years ago, there was relatively little physicians could do to modify the course of hypertension. Since that time modern medicine has achieved one of its most dramatic successes. The story can be told in statistics: between 1950 and 1962, the death rate from hypertension dropped 52% among middle-aged American men and women (ages 45-64).

The "secret weapon" in the successful counterattack on hypertension is really an arsenal: several potent new drugs which singly, or in various combinations, can bring down high blood pressure and keep it down -- if the disease is detected and treated early.

While doctors were making these impressive inroads on hypertension's toll in human lives, scientists exploring the natural history of coronary heart disease made a disquieting discovery, indicating hypertension on a new count.

Among the more than 5,000 persons participating in the Framingham (Mass.) study during the past 15 years, those with blood pressure even slightly above the normal range were found to be running significantly more than the usual risk of having a heart attack for their age group. After 10 years those with frankly high pressures had an incidence of coronary disease four times that of subjects with normal blood pressure. And when high blood pressure was found in combination with obesity or high blood cholesterol or diabetes, the risk was multiplied enormously.

These findings of the Framingham study have urgent significance for the estimated 7 million Americans with hypertension but as yet no heart disease. (In 10 million, heart disease linked to high blood pressure has already appeared.) An attack on this reservoir of potential heart disease might well be reflected in the coronary heart disease mortality tables a few years hence.

Because high blood pressure can encroach and advance without producing any warning symptoms, the importance of regular physical examinations cannot be stressed too often, the Missouri Heart Association notes. Regular physical examination will bring high blood pressure to light.

In a fraction of cases, diagnosis followed by workup may lead to discovery of a specific cause, which can often be corrected. In the majority of cases (those with "essential" hypertension, meaning that no specific cause can be identified) early treatment can be instituted to reverse the course of the disease before serious damage has been done.

The new pressure-lowering drugs are only a part--albeit the major part--of the attack on hypertension. Other measures to control blood pressure include:

* Reduction of excess weight, since overweight aggravates the condition and the risk of heart attack;

* Cessation of cigarette smoking, because smoking just one or two cigarettes brings an immediate rise in blood pressure; also smoking is an added coronary risk factor;

* In suitable cases, reduction of salt intake in the diet, if the doctor prescribes it.

You and your doctor can work together now to control your blood pressure and reduce your risk of having a heart attack. Meanwhile, scientists all over the world are working to discover and eliminate the underlying causes of all cardiovascular disease. Until they do, the Missouri Heart Association urges, give yourself a head start in heading off heart attacks.

The dedicated service of Rep. Tom Baker of Stoddard county in the state legislature produces an immediate reaction of sorrow that more talented, financially independent men can't be induced to hold public office.

A self-made, successful business man, Baker made his mark in the legislature. He not only served his country well but the Bootheel and the people of Missouri as well. His shoes will be difficult to fill.

Baker did not give his constituents token service. In the legislative system, seniority has a great deal to do with effectiveness and he served for three terms before deciding to give up politics. The pressures on him to quit must have been great from the day he started his legislative service. His constituents are fortunate that he was willing to serve them so long.

His faithfulness to duty will be long remembered. He not only served ably, conscientiously and well but he never missed a day's service at a regular session during his six years in the legislature. Not many legislators can claim a record like that and in some cases, of course, the state would benefit if some legislators never showed up for a roll call.

Missouri gained from Baker's authorship of conflict of interest legislation, which restricts public officials from the temptation of trying to serve two or more financial masters and makes it particularly difficult for them to be subservient to special interests while holding public office.

The state will have cleaner, better government because of Baker's efforts to apply safeguards.

His work in behalf of billboard legislation also is appreciated by the residents of Missouri.

Some measure of his service was apparent from the outset of his work in the legislature by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat award to him as most effective first term legislator in 1961.

Under the circumstances there is now nothing left to do but express appreciation to Tom for a job well done and to respect his understandable eagerness to devote more time to his business interests.

THE PRIVATE ENTERPRISE STORY

It is reported that a recent survey of 1,200 young adults (in the 18 to 25 age group) showed that 36 per cent believed that the electric power industry is mostly owned by the government, that 32 per cent did not know the name of their local company, and that 46 per cent did not know that the company is investor-owned.

If this is generally true of that section of our population, it displays a woeful ignorance of some important economic facts. The government--despite the endless campaign to socialize the electric utilities--does not own most of the power industry. The truth is that about 80 per cent of all our electricity is provided by the investor-owned companies and that figure has remained fairly constant over a period of years.

One other finding in this survey is of interest. According to it, 52 per cent of the young adults favor investor ownership of utilities, as against 39 per cent favoring some form of public ownership and 9 per cent offering no opinion. And it is reasonable to suggest that the percentage on the private ownership side would be much larger if there was more widespread knowledge of the important tax factor that is involved. On the average, private utilities pay 25 per cent of all their revenues in taxes -- to the federal government, the states, the counties, the towns and various taxing districts. The public systems either pay nothing or relatively small sums in lieu of taxes. And, in many instances, they are operated on a tax-subsidized basis -- which means at the expense of us all.

The private enterprise story--in the utility field or any other--can't be retold too often.

YOU ARE YOUR IMAGE

Down in the Ozarks they tell a story about a hillbilly who went to an auction and saw his first mirror. When he looked into it he thought it was a picture of his "dear old pappy". He bought the mirror for seventy-five cents. He put it up in the attic where he could frequently sneak away to admire what he thought was a picture of his old pappy. His wife missing him around, became suspicious. So one day while her husband was out hoeing the corn, she went up to the attic and took a look. As she peered into the mirror, she exclained: "Ah ha! That is the old hag he is running around with."

You may not recognize yourself in the mirror of life, but you are your image. You go forth to people through your appearance, your thoughts, your emotions, your words and acts. You spend your lifetime shaping your image, as a sculptor creates a statue. Your image is the sum total of the way you think, the impressions you've received, the life you have lived.

Our real selves cannot be hidden. We cannot live behind a facade. People find us out. "What you are," said Emerson "Thunders so loud I can't hear what you say to the contrary."

A WISE DECISION

A group of customers of a California power company tried to persuade the state's public utility commission that the company's expenditures for advertising and public relations should not be considered in rate making.

They lost -- the commission unanimously held with the utility. And this caused the San Francisco News Call Bulletin to make an apt editorial comment:

The company, it said, "...has the right and the practical necessity to enhance its public image through advertising and public service programs.

"As a regulated corporation, it is under constant spur to maintain and improve performance and is required by the realities of the business world to report on those efforts to its customers and its thousands of stockholders.

"In its action... the PUC upheld a previous policy of recognizing 'the value of advertising and sales promotion by utilities.' The principle is sound, and the decision was wise."

Opposition to regarding utility advertising as a legitimate business cost seems to be based, in part at least, on the theory that inasmuch as these enterprises don't compete directly with each other, they don't need promotion. That is a truly empty theory. As part of their endless expansion and betterment programs, which run into billions of dollars a year, the utilities constantly seek more investors, more customers and more use of their product. And it is their success in this field which has done much to give us the ultimate in service at amazingly low rates.

When and if the question arises, the California decision should be followed everywhere.

Dead To The World

Commercial Appeal

H. L. Hunt Says

OLD AND NEW

Merchandisers and advertisers tell us that the two sure-fire words for selling any product are "free" and "new." Check the slogans on packages you see in your local supermarket and you can confirm this for yourself.

Everyone likes the idea of getting goods and services "free," so few look for the hard realities behind the heady prospect. Where government programs are involved, many people love to bask in the illusion of "free money" -- until the time comes to pay their taxes.

The appeal of "free" as a slogan arises from people not thinking at all. The appeal of "new" does have some basis in reason and reality. There are genuinely new products and processes being developed all the time and it is natural to want them if you can afford them. You know that in the free market a new product or process can be expected to be better than the old one, or it could not compete with the old one in the market-place.

And that's the crux of the matter. A product or a process is not good because it is new, but good because it is better than the old one. Too often we forget this, and extend our love of the new into the realm of ideas where it is far from automatically true that any new idea is better than any old one. That has to be proved; and the thinking person will want the proof before being sold on an idea simply because it is advertised, like a detergent, as "NEW" in big capital letters. HLH

Doc. Duncan Says

All one can read or hear is pro or anti democrat, or republican. No mention is made of the people. They are ignored. Seems like their only chore under the new dictatorship is to confirm and conform, and dig up the in God we trust to feed the machine. Got to be some changes made, somehow.

Rastus, seems like more folks is goin to church than has been in long time, how come?

Wal Si, this threat of total destruction by a bums has got em to thinkin where they are going frum here. As you can see some of em has decided to live it up, burn the candle at bof ends, enjoy sin fur a season, others have decided to suffer wid Gods people rather than enjoy sin fur a season. Some of em think maybe it could be a short season endin tomorrow.

ASHLAND, Va. AP -- Friday, at the busiest hour of the busiest day of the week, all the wheels stop turning in this little college town in the Hanover County countryside 12 miles north of Richmond.

At the stroke of noon, every store, bank, office, will close its doors. Housewives will desert their kitchens. Students and faculty, at Randolph-Macon College will suspend classes.

And, because it's Good Friday --the sacred commemoration of Christ's crucifixion-- everyone will go to church.

The worship of Duncan Memorial Methodist church, which also is the Randolph - Macon chapel, lasts until 1 p.m. Then the normal hustle and bustle of Friday business will resume.

It's been that way in this town of 3,000 since 1964, when the Ashland Ministerial Association won unanimous consent from the business community for its experiment.

Thus, in the minds of two young ministers -- John R. Simmons of the Christian Church and McAllister C. Marshall of the Episcopal Church -- there grew the idea of a one-hour service, with prominent preachers from outside the community, which everyone might attend.

Its success hinged on the ability of people to get to the church for 60 minutes.

The Chamber of Commerce balked at closing businesses at first.

So did Ashland's only Jewish business owner.

Randolph - Macon agreed to suspend its classes from noon to 1 p.m. on each Good Friday. One by one, the local businesses fell in line as community pressure rose

Only the Duncan Memorial church now is big enough to accommodate the crowd that turns out for the Good Friday service. This year, the speaker will be the Rev. Zeh Holler, a Presbyterian minister working toward his doctorate at Richmond's Union Theological Seminary.

And all around town, the wheels of commerce will stop spinning while he talks.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Since the justice department has denied that it is investigating Jack Anderson and me in connection with the alleged theft of Sen. Tom Dodd's papers, it might be well to tell in detail the story of what happened.

While the question of whether we are under investigation is not particularly important, what is important is whether the justice department is probing little people while giving immunity to a senator who is a member of the establishment and a close friend of the White House.

Let's begin at the beginning.

When the FBI starts to investigate anyone, the person under investigation usually hears about it right away. Friends call up and say that G-men have been around to ask questions.

So when G-men began interviewing employees of Sen. Dodd about us and where we obtained documents, we heard about it immediately. Jack Anderson then telephoned Jack Rosenthal, Justice Department Press Relations officer and a conscientious one, to ask why we were under investigation rather than Senator Dodd.

Anderson also asked whether the justice department had investigated Sen. John Williams, R-Del., and his acquisition of government reports and income tax statements in the Bobby Baker case; also whether the justice department had investigated Sen. Dodd and how he acquired state department documents in the Otepka case.

A PERSONAL ANSWER

Mr. Rosenthal said he would call back with an answer. The answer came in the form of a request that we come down to see the Attorney General himself.

The usual newspaper inquiry to the justice department is answered by the press department, not by the Attorney General in person. However, Jack Anderson and I were glad to go to the AG's office where we were greeted by Mr. Katzenbach, a kindly, patient man who looks as if he didn't always enjoy the unpleasant duties of his office; and by Fred Vinson, Jr., chief of the criminal division.

Fred was a young squirt and a star player on the St. Alban's baseball team when a member of our family was going to school there and when his daddy, the late great chief justice of the United States, used to come round to the house to play bridge with Mrs. P. I never dreamed in those days that young Fred would be called in as chief of the criminal division on the other side of the table from me in a criminal investigation.

However, he was very polite and decent about it.

There ensued a reasonably friendly, though at times vigorous, conversation during which the justice department did try to draw a line between investigating us and investigating the documents which Sen. Dodd claims we stole. However, the line was very thin indeed.

The Attorney General tried to make it clear that he was investigating the alleged theft of Dodd's documents, but he did not make it clear how he could do this without investigating those who allegedly stole them.

STRENGTHENING DODD

At about the same time this conversation was taking place, nine FBI agents were at work doing just the opposite of what the Attorney General said was being done. In other words, they were asking questions about Anderson and me.

On one occasion, FBI agents worked so closely with Dodd that they actually sat in one of the senator's committee offices, calling in members of his staff and giving the district impression that the senator, an ex-FBI man, was running the investigation. They were acting under instructions from the justice department.

The questions which FBI agents asked about us had these two important effects:

1. To intimidate witnesses previously willing to testify regarding Dodd. Several of Dodd's employees have been so shocked at his conduct that they have been willing to go on the witness stand.

Attorney General Katzenbach has proposed a law making it a criminal offense to harass or intimidate a witness who has given information to help law enforcement. The prospective witnesses in the Dodd case were certainly helping law enforcement in a most courageous manner -- against a very high official. The FBI interrogation certainly didn't encourage them.

2. The investigation played into Dodd's hands by raising a smoke screen about stolen documents when the real issue is whether a senator violated the law and the ethics of high public office.

If and when the case does go to court, the senator can claim the evidence is tainted.

Incidentally, we have stolen no documents.

Real clincher in this whole business is that three weeks ago we offered the justice department the evidence and a list of witnesses in the Dodd case. However, since we persuaded the witnesses to testify, not one witness has been questioned regarding Dodd's conduct. Instead they have been cross - examined and, in effect, intimidated regarding stolen documents and about Pearson and Anderson.

With all due respect, Mr. Katzenbach, that is not the way to make democracy live.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Gala Tower Suite Party Shows No President Ever as Close to Labor as LBJ.

New York: -- If Ambassador Arthur Goldberg decides to change careers again, he'll do mighty well as a stage director.

That was evident at the historic party he gave in his 42nd floor Waldorf Towers residence last Saturday night (April 2) in honor of his intimate friend, David Dubinsky, whose retirement as president of the garment workers made global news recently.

The gala was replete with nostalgia, proletarian songs, gay music and a unique tribute from President Johnson.

Even Walter Reuther sang as composer - pianist Harold Rome hit the piano with "Sing Me a Song of Social Significance"; and "Gene and Francesca" did folk song renditions of old sweatshop era tunes.

There were 40 selected guests, hand-picked by the ambassador, but it was an intimate gathering nonetheless.

However, the true social significance of the soiree was the intimacy it exhibited which exists between the "elders" of labor and the President of the U. S.

Had the pressure of war not been upon him, Lyndon Johnson and his lady would have been there. He could not come, but shortly after dinner Ambassador Goldberg, spokesman for the U. S. to the world congress of nations, arose and read a letter from the White House.

"Dear Arthur: I envy you and Dorothy tonight," said the note. "You are enjoying the privilege of honoring an American Tradition. Every advance towards a great and decent society has been aided by the trail-blazing of pioneers who were determined to help build a better life for people. David Dubinsky is one of those pioneers.

"Though I can't be with you personally, Ladybird and I send warm greetings to a good man is now on the honor roll of American citizens whose leadership enriched the lives of their fellow men."

As the burst of applause eased, Mr. Goldberg looked about the room in which were the U. N.'s Ralph Bunche; Alex Rose, labor's own American blend of Noel Coward and Harold Wilson; soft - spoken Louis Stulberg; garment union president, and Walter Reuther.

The ambassador, with feigned reluctance, said the time had come for speeches -- short ones -- not such as those delivered at the U.N. or some labor conventions. Even Walter Reuther laughed at the sally. (Newsmen have been known to run a pool on the length of the auto union leader's talks.)

But Reuther kept the faith. He was brief and also significant. He and Arthur, he said, were "disciples" of Dave Dubinsky.

And true it is. These men have made a new world. They have come a long way from the days of Franklin Roosevelt.

Here they were being hosted by a man who had once been their own attorney. He had gone the gamut - labor policy maker, member of the President's Cabinet, Supreme Court Justice and Chief Representative of the U.S. to the U.N.

As the new president of the ladies garment workers, Lou Stulberg, put it, the world had been made. Now new generations were coming up and they would soon come unto their own. Today's labor leaders had but to "hold the torch" for a bit longer and then make way.

But it was still the world of the labor men gathered there in Arthur Goldberg's tower suite.

Only one man was missing -- George Meany. He would have been there but for his post-operative confinement in the Harkness Pavilion because of hip surgery. But the ambassador had accompanied Mr. Dubinsky to Mr. Meany's bedside the day before the dinner party.

There, on the dresser, was a basket of flowers. It was from President and Mrs. Johnson--the first flowers to arrive. Mr. Johnson had had White House aides keep in close touch with the hospital.

There is significance in the warm letter to the party, and in the party itself and in the flowers. These are not just the mark of good politics. They are the evidence of a strong bond, a friendship superseding the necessities of a balanced ticket and a balanced party.

They mark a friendship which never was achieved by either the aristocratic FDR, the courthouse square-ish HST, or the Bostonian JFK.

"The others were our friends," said one of the labor men after the dinner party, "but nothing like Lyndon Johnson ever happened to the labor movement before."

Mrs. Hayward reported that a Sikeston fifth grade student had won the state essay contest. The award will be made at a school assembly. Mrs. Jones reported that the girl sponsored by the D. A. R. for the school of the Ozarks had been placed on a waiting list.

Mrs. Joseph L. Baker's account of the state meeting included a blue ribbon award for having the most members for havng the most members at the district meeting.

Mrs. Helen Jones is the state chairman of the American Heritage committee.

Mrs. F. D. Rolwing gave an interesting talk on the great earthquake of 1811 and 1812. On Dec. 10, the first of a long series of earthquakes occurred. Another very severe one was in January and another one in February, 1812, caused most of the inhabitants of New Madrid to flee their homes. There were few people killed though the earth rose and fell in long ripples, some miles long. There were strong fumes and much smoke. For one whole day the Mississippi river flowed backward and many boats were wrecked and their cargoes thrown along the banks. The government allowed the people of the area claims of other lands not already settled. Most of these claims were brought up by speculators and many overlapped.

Nationally little notice was taken of this great catastrophe which caused many people to lose all they had. This was due to the remote area from the principal cities, sparce population and the interest and excitement of the War of 1812.

Robinson Lifts Orioles Over Yankees With Homer

Fortunately for the Baltimore Orioles, Frank Robinson is not four years younger.

If he were, the 30-year-old Robinson probably would still be with the Cincinnati Reds, and the Orioles would not have his potent bat to help them in their quest for the American League pennant.

Robinson socked his eighth homer of the spring Wednesday, a two-run blast that gave the Orioles a 2-0 victory over the New York Yankees.

The veteran outfielder rapped three hits, raising his exhibition average to .388. The homer, following Curt Blefary's double in the sixth inning, increased his runs batted in total to 17.

All of this has come in Robinson's first spring away from the Reds, for whom he toiled for 10 seasons. He was traded last Dec. 9 for pitchers Milt Pappas and Jack Baldschun and outfielder Dick Simpson.

Robinson's homer supported the combined two-hit pitching of Jim Palmer, Eddie Watt and Stu Miller. Palmer held the Yankees hitless for five innings, but pitcher Al Downing doubled against Watt in the sixth.

Ray Sadecki and Dennis Aust collaborated on a four-hitter as St. Louis downed Philadelphia 5-1. George Kernek drove in three Cardinal runs and lashed two singles and a double.

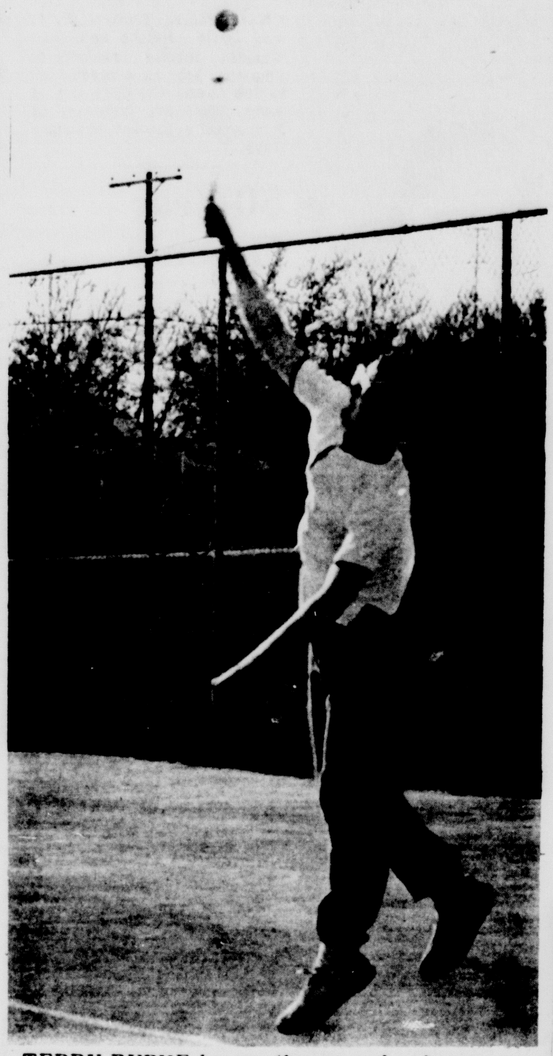

Cincinnati edged Minnesota 3-2 on Tommy Harper's run-scoring infield single in the ninth inning. Deron Johnson singled, raced to second as Pete Cimino uncorked a wild pitch, moved to third on a ground out and dashed across as Harper beat out the hit down the third base line.

A seven-run explosion in the sixth inning carried Boston past the New York Mets 8-7. Tony Conigliaro doubled across one run in the inning and walked with the bases loaded for the eventual winning run. Dick Stuart hit a three-run homer for the Mets in the eighth.

Cleveland nipped Los Angeles 6-5 on Bill Davis' bases-loaded, run-scoring single in the ninth. Duke Sims and Larry Brown homered earlier for the Indians.

Eddie Mathews homered in the first inning and sparked Atlanta to a 3-1 victory over Houston while Ty Cline's run-scoring single and Wes Covington's sacrifice fly gave the Chicago Cubs a 3-1 victory over California.

Kansas City defeated Washington 5-1 with a 14-hit attack, including three hits each by Bert Campaneris, Jose Tartabull and Ken Suarez.

TERRY BURKE leaves the ground as he serves the ball to Bruce of Caruthersville as Terry beat his opponent 6-0 and 7-5.

Bulldog Golfers Win First Game

Sikeston's Bulldog golf team won its first match of the season yesterday by defeating Caruthersville 167-174. Sikeston Golfer Charles Stamp fired the low number of strokes for the day with a 37. Ned Matthews shot a 40, David Whiteaker shot a 43, and Charles Atchison shot a 47. Scores for Caruthersville ran 42, 43, 44, and 45.

Sikeston's tennis team failed to do as well as the golf team. They were defeated 6 to 2 by Caruthersville. In singles Terry Burke of Sikeston beat Bruce of Caruthersville 6-0 and 7-5. Wythe Miller lost to Caruthersville's Hendricks 6-2 and 6-3. In doubles Gray and Teroy of Caruthersville beat Ron Hill and Jerry Humes of Sikeston, 6-3, and 6-0. Bulldog netmen Terry Burke and Wythe Miller beat Hendricks and Bruce 8-5. Sikeston lost four other matches, all of which were pressed for time. They were Caruthersville's Gary beating Hank Lippert 6-2, Teroy over Jerry Humes 6-3, Whitefield over Ron Hill 6-1, and McAlister over Brad Crumpecker 6-2. The Bulldog tennis team journey's to Kennett today. Coach Richmond says "they should do better as today was their first match of the season and the newer boys should be settled down more to competition."

Sikeston's athlete's in Golf, Track and Tennis will travel to Kennett today for competition, with each event beginning at 1 p.m. Schools from Cape, Poplar Bluff, Dexter, Portageville, Caruthersville and host Kennett will compete in the track events.

This should prove to be a very good meet in having most of the top track schools in Southeast Missouri competing.

The weather will be fine for each event and Sikeston's cindermen should prove to be up to their potential in this match.

Cards Win With 13 Hit Attack

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA. -- Just when it seemed that the Cardinals' offense might qualify for aid under the war on poverty, things began breaking right for them. George Kernek and Alex Johnson brightened the picture with robust hitting -- and Ray Sadecki got into the pitching act, too.

Sadecki pitched the Red Birds to a tidy 5-1 exhibition triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night at Al Lang Field.

Sadecki delighted Manager Red Schoendienst with a brilliant performance and reliever Dennis Aust then breezed past the Phils, bringing from the Redhead an enthusiastic burst:

"Our pitching's great, isn't it?"

The htting wasn't bad, either, in the Cardinals' next-to-last appearance in Florida. With Kernek enjoying a perfect 3-for-3 and driving in three runs, and Johnson stroking three straight hits against his old club, the Red Birds quickly took command in their return match.

GET 13 HITS

Just the night before, at the Phils' Clearwater base, the Cardinal attack looked impotent in a 2-0 loss in which no fewer than 13 runners were stranded. They made the most of a 13-hit punch this time.

Hawks Blast Lakers 120-113

Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Player-coach Richie Guerin of the St. Louis Hawks was all smiles as he handed a telegram to everyone who came near him in the dressing room Wednesday night.

"You did okay against a bunch of cripples," it read, "but how are you doing against a healthy team." It was signed by "A Laker Fan."

"I guess we showed him," said Guerin, who had an ice pack on his bad leg.

Guerin and his Hawks had just outshot the healthy Los Angeles Lakers for a 120-113 victory, their first in three games of the final playoff of the National Basketball Association's Western Division.

Their 64 per cent shooting from the field gave them a 62-56 halftime lead. They finished with a 52.2 per cent, continuing the hot hand that gave them three straight victories over the injured Baltimore Bullets in the semi-final round.

Across from Guerin, who scored 24 points, was Bill Bridges, whose weight reducing program has added much-needed heft to the St. Louis offense.

Bridges sank 12 of 17 shots and picked off 17 rebounds.

"I've been concentrating on getting down from the 240 I've weighed ever since I came into the league five years ago," said the husky forward, who now weighs 224. "I think it's helped a lot on my jump shot."

The teams tangle in the fourth game of the best of seven set Saturday night in St. Louis.

Mets And Cards Picked to Finish in Cellar

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Maloney and Sammy Ellis, Cincinnati's answer to Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, may not make fans forget the Dodgers duo, but they could lead the pitching-rich Reds to the National League pennant.

Although Koufax and Drysdale have returned to the Dodgers staff following a collective 32-day holdout, the addition of trade-acquired Milt Pappas and Jack Baldschun to the Reds' pitching staff figures to lift them to the top spot for the first time since 1961.

But Maloney and Ellis will have to do for the Reds what Koufax and Drysdale did for the world champion Dodgers last year — provide that EXTRA that teams need to come out in front in the perennial five or six-team battle for the NL flag.

The Cincinnati duo won 42 games between them last year, joining Koufax and Drysdale as the only 20-victory pairs in the majors. Maloney outdid Koufax in one department by pitching two no-hitters, and Ellis put together his 22 victories in his first season as a starter.

Here then is the predicted order of finish:

1. Cincinnati
2. Atlanta
3. San Francisco
4. Los Angeles
5. Philadelphia
6. Pittsburgh
7. Chicago
8. Houston
9. St. Louis
10. New York

The Cubs can't win the pennant, even with Leo Durocher as manager. The Astros still are trying to lay the foundation.

That leaves six possibilities, and any one of them could wind up on top after game No. 162. However, the edge seems to be with the Reds because of their strong pitching.

For starters there are Maloney, Ellis, Pappas, veterans Joey Jay, Joe Nuxhall and John Tsitouris and Jim O'Toole, who had a disastrous 1965, with a 3-10 record but at 29 should be able to make a substantial comeback.

Baldschun, who appeared in 65 games for Philadelphia last year, adds strength to the bullpen that was weak last season. He will join fireballing Billy McCool, giving the Reds a solid righty-lefty combine.

To get Pappas, the Reds gave up hard-hitting Frank Robinson, but there shouldn't be too much of a drop-off in run production with such bats in the line-up as Deron Johnson, Gordy Coleman, Vada Pinson, Pete Rose, young, improving Tommy Harper and rookie infielder Tommy Helms.

Atlanta has all the ingredients with heavy hitting in Hank Aaron, Joe Torre and Ed Mathews plus solid pitching in 24-game winner Tony Cloninger, Ken Johnson and Wade Blasingame. The Braves also may be helped psychologically by having left Milwaukee.

The Giants have the incomparable Willie Mays and one of the best pitchers in the business, Juan Marichal. That's enough to make them pennant material. In addition, Lindy McDaniel will be valuable in the bullpen.

With Koufax, Drysdale and Maury Wills, the Dodgers have to be a contender. But the big question is how much the two hurlers will be affected by the 32 days they were away from camp.

If they can catch up quickly, the Dodgers will be right up there. If they fall behind at the start, the defending champs may have trouble catching up.

The Phillies again have shuffled their cards, acquiring Bill White and Dick Groat to go with a hard-hitting combine of Rich Allen and Johnny Callison. Jim Bunning, Chris Short and Ray Culp form a top crew of starters.

The Pirates also have heavy shellers in Willie Stargell, Donn Clendenon and batting champion Roberto Clemente. Vern Law, Bob Veale, and Don Cardwell, along with reliever Al McBean, form a solid pitching corps.

Still, Cincinnati would seem to have the edge in pitching quality. It was good enough for the Dodgers last year, and it should be good enough for the Reds this year.

PITTSBURGH AP -- Somebody stole home at Forbes Field, but it wasn't one of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Groundskeeper Eddie Dunn discovered that home plate was missing while taking some measurements at the field Tuesday.

Iowa State Takes On Mizzou

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Back home from a Texas trip that was too costly, Missouri opens defense of its Big Eight baseball crown against Iowa State here Friday and Saturday.

The Tigers and Cyclones will play a Friday double-header on Rollins Field starting at 1 p.m. -- with Saturday's single affair set for the same time.

Ol' Mizzou took a 3-3 record into the Wednesday afternoon road finale with Ft. Sam Houston. The Bengals beat Randolph Air Force Base, Texas A & M and West Texas State -- but lost to Trinity, Sam Houston State and St. Mary's.

Coach John (Hi) Simmons still will be trying to stabilize his shaky outfield in this important series. Speedy Ray Thorpe hurt a shoulder in the Trinity opener and returned home for treatment. In the fourth game with Texas A & M, rookie Ron Coleman fractured his left arm in a collision at home-plate.

Thorpe, regular left-fielder, is doubtful for this weekend's activity. Coleman, who had 8 hits in 15 trips including two homers, apparently is through for the year.

Sophomores Jim Loving and Ken Layden, and Barry Lubeck, are the leading candidates for the two vacancies -- with veteran Gene Stephenson in right field.

Iowa State, a one-time winner in four games with Minnesota, has one of the league's foremost hurlers. Tim Van Galder, the Big Eight's top passer last fall, is Coach Cap Timm's No. 1 chucker -- while Bob Ziegler, basketball standout, is due to pitch here also.

Simmons likely will rely on his proven moundsmen -- Orville Hollrah, Terry L'Ange, Mike Eader and Bob Carpenter -- for duty against Iowa State. However, sophomore Mike McFarland earned Simmons' esteem by striking out 10 Randolph Air Force batsmen in four innings.

Unable to work outdoors at Ames, the Cyclones arrived in Tigertown Thursday for an afternoon workout on the Mizzou diamond. Coolish 50-degree weather was in prospect for the three-game set.

Mizzou Travels To Norman Sat.

COLUMBIA, Mo.--Coach Tom Boots foresees an end to Mizzou's lengthy string of dual and triangular meet wins down in Norman this Saturday.

Mizzou's all-winning figure--now 31 straight--will be an easy target for Coach J. D. Martin's Sooners, Botts figures.

"They'll probably win by 20 or 30 points," says the veteran M.U. coach. "In fact, Oklahoma --unless something happens along the way -- will be the team to beat in the Big Eight outdoor meet."

Always thin in javelin and triple-jump talent, Missouri won't profit from the additional outdoor events. Sprinter-hurdler Charlie Brown also is more effective at the shorter indoor distances.

The league's best high-jumpers -- Ron Tull of Oklahoma and M.U.'s Steve Herndon--will renew their private quarrel this week. Tull unseated Herndon as the reigning conference king with a 6-10 1/2 leap indoors. Herndon cleared 6-10 at the N.C.A.A. indoor meet to out-do his O.U. rival.

Except in the distance races, the high hurdles and shotput, however, the Bengals won't have equivalent resources. Still trying to shake off the effects of a heavy cold is Charlie Conrad, veteran 880-mile doubler, who had to forego the Texas Relays trip.

Tigers Picked To Take Pennant

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Picking the American League used to be a breeze. Put the Yankees on top, Washington at the bottom and then fill in the spaces. It doesn't work out that way any more.

It probably is safe to eliminate Kansas City, Boston and Washington before a bat is swung in anger. After that sixth-place finish, 25 games back, New York almost goes into the same category. Almost, but not quite.

There are those who believe the Yankees still may awaken and regain their lost glory. However, they are in the minority. Mickey Mantle is only a pinch hitter, Tony Kubek is retired and Jim Bouton still is looking for that fast ball.

This shapes up like a typical National League-type race with five of six teams having a chance at it. Minnesota has the bombers and Baltimore has added Frank Robinson's power. Eddie Stanky has the Chicago White Sox hustling and Cleveland is thinking big.

Granted that every club has a weakness that could prove fatal, Detroit looks like the best bet to this observer with a good balance of young and experienced pitching and pretty fair sock. Chuck Dressen will cook the chili and pull the strings. All he needs is a solid bullpen man and a little bit of luck in avoiding injuries.

At this time of year on a clear day you can see forever. It may look different in October. The following predicted order is guaranteed to put the kiss of death on the Tigers:

1. Detroit
2. Baltimore
3. Minnesota
4. Chicago
5. New York
6. Cleveland
7. California
8. Washington
9. Boston
10. Kansas City

Dressen can match any staff with Denny McLain, Joe Sparman, Mickey Lolich from the kiddie corps and Bill Monboquette and Hank Aguirre from the oldsters. With Dave Wickersham for relief or spot starts, it looks like the best staff in the league.

A healthy Al Kaline and the slugging of Willie Horton and Norm Cash give Detroit solid run potential. The infield is solid, but not brilliant, and the addition of Dick Tracewski to back up the regulars should help. The Tigers are very thin in catching behind Bill Freehan.

Baltimore has the big boom with Boog Powell, Frank Robinson, Curt Blefary and Brooks Robinson but the absence of Dick Brown, who underwent brain surgery, leaves a gap in the catching department. It remains to be seen if Hank Bauer can find enough pitching to make up for the loss of Milt Pappas to Cincinnati. Dave McNally and Steve Barber on the starting line and Dick Hall and Stu Miller in the bullpen are the solid staff members.

There is a disposition to believe that the Twins won't do it again but this may be a horrible mistake. With Harmon Killebrew, Tony Oliva, Don Mincher, Jimmie Hall and Zoilo Versalles the defending champs have plenty of muscle. A second base gap and a leaky defense are the drawbacks. A healthy Camilo Pascual and a repeat of 1965 by Mudcat Grant could carry the Twins right into another World Series.

Stanky has been doing it with mirrors so far this spring, just like Al Lopez did for years with the White Sox. The pitching is only as solid as the bullpen pair of Eddie Fisher and Hoyt Wilhelm, who has been handicapped by a broken finger. The Sox hung in there last year, finishing second with Juan Pizarro winning only six games. If Eddie can do better he should be the manager of the year.

The Yanks' problems are many, starting with Mantle who has been limited to pinch hitting duties as he recuperates from shoulder surgery. Roger Maris appears to be back in the groove and Elston Howard is healthy.

Whitey Ford and Mel Stottlemyre are the solid pitchers. Two rookies, Roy White and Bobby Murcer, can hit but it remains to be seen if they can do the job in the field.

Cleveland packs good power in Rocky Colavito, Leon Wagner, Max Alvis and Fred Whitfield. Sam McDowell, Sonny Siebert and Luis Tiant provide a pitching nucleus.

The Angels hope to make a splash in their new Anaheim, Calif., home but the first division probably is beyond reach. Washington's pitchers have been getting bombed in the South and Gil Hodges may be pressed to hold eighth place. Boston still hits homers, but the youth program still is light years away. Kansas City has brought in Alvin Dark to handle a club that is short of everything but hope although their hitters can shake up a few pitchers.

FISHING FACTS

You can't miss! Or can you? With exciting reports of fishing rolling in from lakes over the southern half of the country, it's difficult to understand why anyone going afloat should not bring home a bushel of big bass.

Yet it happens often, say the fishing experts, usually to the angler who neglects the basic rules of fish finding.

Despite their willingness to strike, springtime bass must be stalked almost as deliberately as during any other time of year, but not necessarily in the same locations.

Small fish can be found in the shallows, as they quickly respond to warming conditions first noted in bays and along the flats. Surface and shallow-running lures will usually give better results than natural baits.

To discover the big fish, you'll have to work the bottom, as in any season. Though lunkers make feeding forays into the shallows, they tend to spend most of their hours in the intermediate regions. To reach them, select deep-running or bottom-bumping lures.

Time of day is less critical during this period than a few months from now. If you want to sleep late, go ahead. Several hours of sunshine may be required to provoke underwater activity.

If you approach springtime bass fishing in a methodical manner, you can't miss. But you still must fish in the right places.

Society itself suffers when people are allowed to sacrifice identity in the damp laundry of mediocrity.

Baseball Suit Closed, Decision This Weekend

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee-Atlanta tug of war over the Braves is nearing an opening day showdown.

The State of Wisconsin made a dramatic shift in position Wednesday as the trial of its antitrust suit against the Braves and the National League closed with an oratorical clang.

Special counsel Willard S. Stafford asked Judge Elmer W. Roller to order the Braves back to Milwaukee this season only if the league failed to agree by Tuesday to give Milwaukee an expansion team for 1967.

Tuesday is when the Braves are scheduled to open their National League season in Atlanta after 13 years in Milwaukee.

It was the first time the state publicly dropped its unconditional demand for baseball in 1966, a demand baseball officials have said could not possibly be met.

Baseball has not ruled out expansion to include Milwaukee in 1967.

Roller, who was told by baseball attorneys that he could not succeed in ordering the Braves back to Milwaukee, reserved decision in the case until this weekend. The white-haired Milwaukee County circuit court judge promised a ruling by Saturday or Sunday.

Baseball attorneys went through with their final arguments as if no offer had been made. But Baseball Commissioner William Eckert said in Washington:

"This is a development that the National League will have to take under consideration. It will have to be studied. So many times, I wish this matter can be settled to everyone's advantage. Baseball will have to take a good look at it."

Roller already has ordered the Braves and the league to prepare for baseball in Milwaukee this season, but a superior court judge in Fulton County, Ga., has told the Braves to honor their contract to play in Atlanta. A U.S. district court judge in Houston, Tex., has been asked for a permanent injunction to keep the Braves in the South.

Mrs. Grace Hamby Wall announces the sale of Hamby Pest Control to Bruce-Terminix world's best-known termite and pest control firm

Dear Friends:

For 18 years, the Hamby Pest Control Company has been a part of the Sikeston community. Much time and effort has been put into making it the well-respected firm it is today. But now it is no longer practical for me to operate the business on my own.

I have looked around to find the most dependable and reliable pest and termite control organization in the country to assure our good customers continued fine service. With the purchase of Hamby Pest Control by Bruce-Terminix, you can be certain of the same skilled protection for your homes and businesses that our company has always provided. Bruce-Terminix is owned by E. L. Bruce Co., world's largest producer of hardwood flooring. All work is bonded and insured.

When you deal with Bruce-Terminix it will be the same as doing business with Hamby's. A resident manager, Mr. Earl Hart, is to be located right here in Sikeston, and he is ready to serve your needs immediately during this present termite swarming season. Be sure to call him.

Thank you for your loyal patronage through the years. We leave you in good hands.

Sincerely,
Grace Hamby Wall

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

"Look and see if there is any sorrow like my sorrow which was brought upon me." (Lamentations 1:12, RSV)

PRAYER: Lord Jesus, we worship Thee for Thine infinite love and obedience to the Father. Accept our hearts and lives as our meager gratitude for Thy sufferings. Give us grace to be wholly Thine in life and death, and to pray, as Thou has taught us, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . Amen."

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: In regard to that boxer dog that snored so loud he kept the neighbors awake, please tell the owners about a surgical correction that can eliminate the dog's snoring. The operation is performed under anesthesia and is painless.

Also, Ann, your readers might be interested to know that it is no longer necessary to put up with a barking dog all hours day and night. A surgical procedure can "debark" a dog very easily. The animal does not know that he has been debarked and he continues to bark, but the sound is muted and it disturbs no one. -- NS., D.V.M.

Dear N.S.: I checked with my own "D.V.M." in Chicago, (his initials are P.O.L.) and he tells me that the de-snoring operation is peachy, but he would not fool around with the debarking procedure for anything in the world.

He insists that a dog DOES know something has been done to his vocal chords and the frustration is very hard on his nerves. So back to the earplugs, Buster.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been running away from this problem for years and it has been making me miserable. Maybe you can help.

I am 29 now, have a lovely family and a good life. But I can't get up before a group and give my name and address without shaking for half an hour after. I know it's silly but I can't help it.

In high school and college I faked laryngitis, toothaches, anything to get out of talking before the class. The times when I could not get out of it I'd get so nervous I'd almost pass out.

I'm not shy with friends and I can entertain large groups in my home with no feelings of insecurity whatever. Please tell me what to do. -- REDDING ROSE

Dear Red Rose: If there is a Toastmaster's Club in your town, join it. I also recommend a public speaking course if one is available.

The FEAR of going to pieces finishes you before you start. The best way to conquer the fear is to meet the situation head on and say to yourself, "I will not let this defeat me." Then do the thing you are afraid of. If you simply can't make yourself do it, see a psychiatrist and work with him to remove the psychological block.

Dear Ann Landers: A boy in the senior class (age 17) worries me. Hal is very good-looking, smart, and well-liked, but he lives in a world of cameras.

Hal has never had a date in his whole life. His deplorable state can best be described by this incident. I said to him last week, "How come you never go out on dates?" He replied, "I can't afford dates. I just spent $300 on a camera."

I am not bragging, Ann, but I'm a popular girl and there isn't a boy in our class (except this nut) who wouldn't be proud to take me out. What can I do about him? -- NEW HAVEN

Dear New: It's funny that a girl can get a date with any fellow in the class, but the one SHE'S interested in is the nut who doesn't know she's alive.

Leave him alone and he may get the picture.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Three Rob Kennett Man

KENNETT -- The Dunklin County Sheriff's office is looking for three men who robbed a Kennett man Monday west of Cardwell.

Deputy Sheriff Radford Raines, who investigated the robbery with Deputy Juston Huggins of Cardwell, said the theft took place about 1 a.m.

Harold Peck Romines of Kennett told officers he was returning from Hot Springs, Ark. and stopped at the Bootheel Cafe for a few minutes. He mentioned while in the cafe that he was tired and sleepy and a man in the cafe offered to drive him to Kennett. Romaines accepted the offer.

About two miles from the cafe the man turned off on a dirt road. Romines protested that that was not the way to Kennett, but the man drove on a little way and stopped. Two men following in another car also stopped. One of the men appeared to have a Luger-type pistol, Romines said. They made Romines get out of his car and took about $150 from his pocketbook. They then searched the car and told him his keys would be in the floor board, but warned him not to try to leave until they were out of sight or they would shoot him.

Raines and Huggins questioned suspects in the Cardwell and Paragould areas, but no arrests have been made.

Romines said it was too dark to identify the other two men, but the man who offered to drive him was about five feet, eight inches tall, had dark hair and was neatly dressed.

Bluff Will Vote on Plant Expansion Bonds

POPLAR BLUFF -- The Poplar Bluff city council has approved a resolution calling for a bond issue for the expansion of the H. W. Gossard Co. plant.

Mayor Jim Ruble was authorized by the Council to sign a contract to lease with the H. W. Gossard Co., and formal application for permission to hold an election is being made with the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development.

Councilmen approved the proposed bond issue calling for an addition to the present building located on Relief Street, where it is anticipated that over 100 more persons will be employed if the plant expands.

Mayor Ruble said that the bond issue, if passed, would not result in higher taxes. The present tax rate is $2 per assessed $100 evaluation.

Harlo Dunn, Executive Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, informed members of the Council that the State Division of Health has tentatively selected a site on PP Highway for a mental heatlh clinic and has asked for additional details on the site before a decision is made.

Mayor Ruble said that the mental health clinic would employ about 40 persons when it is located here.

Educators Praise Adult Programs

A delegation of four, a state official and three educators, reported Tuesday that the adult vocational education program in Sikeston is sound, and a step in the right director.

They spoke before Sikeston educators at the Country Club Tuesday.

This was the opinion of Lt.-Gov. Thomas Eagleton, who was placed in charge of placing the program in Missouri. He was accompanied by Dr. Chester Swanson, a former chief of staff of educational study under the late President Kennedy's, and presently on the staff of the University of California in Berkeley.

Two additional educators present were Dr. Dennis Kigin, faculty member of the University of Missouri, Columbia, and Buford Robinson, assistant commissioner of department of education in Missouri, Jefferson City.

The four men flew to Sikeston to make an inspection of the vocational education and manpower programs. The delegation visited the Airport school program in the morning, and high school shortly after noon. From here they went to Cape Girardeau for an inspection.

Robinson said: "Your program in Sikeston is one of the better ones in Missouri."

Dr. Kigin remarked: "We are well impressed with what we have seen today, and we hope all other programs in the state can give the job opportunities you are doing here."

Dr. Swanson said: "Up to now the vocational education was something many persons merely played with, but today the fast change in automation makes it necessary that it is now an important investment. The labor market does not treat the person well who does not have some training. Today, most of the states are now doing what you are doing.

"Today, a teacher must keep up with not only the textbooks, but must keep up with the labor market. We are constantly keeping in touch with the labor markets.

"We know how to train students for the college level, but for vocational programs, we must think of skills for the fast changing industrial labor forces."

"Manufacturers cannot tell us today how many persons and types of skills are needed, so we must train them in a variety of skills."

In charge of the program was Harold Vogel, school administrative assistant, and L. M. Standley, president of the school board.

Standley said:

"This is my last act on the Sikeston R-6 school board, but I wish to say that much of the present program was started five years ago. Now that the program has communitywide support, I hope this entire committee will look into the future, and will include a junior college. I was sold on the junior college program a few months ago on my visit to the University of Michigan."

Bond Scheme Promoted

ST. LOUIS -- The endless chain savings bond scheme which swept the country a few years ago, again is being promoted as a get-rich-quick lure to fool the gullible.

A typical Savings Bond endless chain letter lists the names and addresses of 11 people, and is sold person-to-person. An individual desiring to participate, pays the person whose name appears at the bottom of the list an $18.75 bond, and is required, in the presence of the seller, to mail another $18.75 bond to the first name on the list. The new participant then makes two copies of the letter and sells it to two other people. The participant is told that when his name reaches the top of the list, he will receive bonds totaling $38,400.

Postal authorities have warned that this plan is violative of both postal fraud and lottery laws, and that those who participate in such activities may be subject to criminal prosecution. Treasury Department officials advise that their Department strongly disapproves of the sale of Savings Bonds through such unlawful methods. As early as 1955, Savings Bond issuing agents were authorized to reject purchase applications where the agent has reason to believe that the applications are made in connection with a chain letter scheme. While participants in this type of chain letter scheme may think they are doing the Government a favor, they are participating in a get-rich quick endeavor, which does a distinct disservice to the Savings Bond Program.

The Post Office Department states "Such schemes are deemed to be lotteries because the question as to whether the chain will be broken is a matter of chance. So, also, is it a matter of chance whether a participant will reap anything from his participation in these schemes. A savings bond purchased in connection with such schemes is deemed under postal laws to represent a share, or interest in or dependent upon the event of the lottery, and is, therefore, non-mailable."

Further -- "The fraud aspect enters into these schemes because representations are made that the participants will eventually receive substantial rewards. In the usual case, however, the chain of gullible persons soon vanishes, and there is no way by which a new participant can determine whether there is available a reservoir of interested persons sufficient to move his name to the top of the 'list'."

Miner Will Address Press

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, April 7, the 97th day of 1966. There are 268 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1788, a band of 47 men stepped ashore at what was to be Marietta, Ohio, wrote a set o' laws and established the first formally organized government in what was then the Northwest.

On this date

In 1770, the English poet, William Wordsworth, was born.

In 1798, Congress organized the territory of Mississippi, including the present state of Alabama.

In 1891, showman Phineas T. Barnum died.

In 1933, beer and wine became legal in the United States after 13 dry years.

In 1945, U.S. carrier planes sank Japan's largest battleship — the Yamato — off Kyushu island coast.

Ten years ago — A Senate select committee found that a campaign gift rejected by Republican Sen. Francis Case of South Dakota was offered to influence the senator's vote on the natural gas bill. Later, two attorneys for the Superior Oil Co. of California and the firm were indicted for alleged violation of lobby laws.

Five years ago — British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan interrupted a Washington visit with President John F. Kennedy to address a centennial audience at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, Mass.

One year ago — President Johnson, in a television-radio speech, said the United States was prepared to take part in unconditional discussions to end the war in Viet Nam.

Ritchie Joins Palsy Center

BENTON -- Raymond Ritchie, who is associated with the St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau, has joined the Cerebral Palsy Development Center staff as the physical therapist. Mrs. Wm. Miller, public relations chairman, announced.

The center is open from 1 to 3 Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

Clubs in Scott and Mississippi counties are being contacted for volunteer workers for the center so that the children enrolled can begin to participate in group therapy, Mrs. Miller said.

Children are accepted for evaluation by the development center upon the referral of a physician, she noted, and no direct fee is charged.

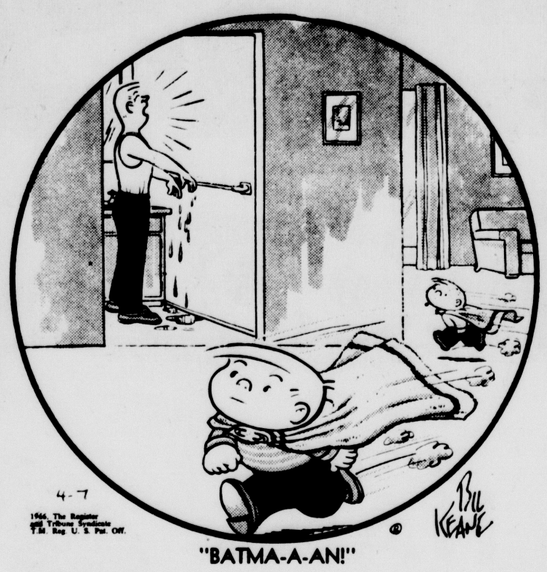

The enrollment at the center is one, with six cases that have been to the center for evaluation by Dr. Frank Tull, medical adviser. Thirty-five cases remain to report to the center in the near future for evaluation by Dr. Tull, she explained.

Montgomery ended a four-year extradition fight Feb. 15 with a surprise flight from Sikeston to Memphis, where he turned himself over to authorities.

Montgomery's attorneys had no comment.

Montgomery said this morning that he is ready to go "anyway they want to go."

ARCHITECTURAL PLANS for building on the site of the newly formed Trinity Baptist Church were approved last night. The center building will be constructed first.

New Trinity Baptist Church Accepts Building Plans

Members of the newly formed Trinity Baptist Church voted last night to accept architects plans for a $260,000 church to be erected on a 20-acre site on highway 61 North, adjacent to the Joel Montgomery property.

Construction will begin in eight weeks. Land preparation will begin immediately.

The church has an option to purchase the land from Bill Huff for $45,000.

A $260,000 church building will be the first step in development of the site. This first building will occupy seven acres in the center of the development.

Earnest money for the site has already been paid to Huff.

The first building will have two stories.

The first story will include: portico, foyer, women's parlor, two kitchens, nursery, reception room, powder room, general office, pastor study, library, conference room, men's toilet, supply work room, records room, four adult class rooms, temporary sanctuary and fellowship room, janitor and general storage room, mechanical equipment room, pantry, baptistry, two dressing rooms, facilities for the choir, piano and organ.

The second floor will be devoted to the young people's department.

It will include; 11 classrooms, junior and intermediate assembly room, young married people classroom, young people classroom, beginners classroom, primary classroom, women's and men's toilets, and a junior department.

At the entrance will be a fountain and pool surrounded by a lawn enclosed with a driveway.

It is planned to add educational facilities, chapel and church sanctuary buildings. Services, at the time of construction of the church sanctuary, will be moved from the temporary sanctuary and fellowship room in the first building to be constructed.

Behind the proposed church buildings, will be a supervised children's playground, shelter houses for picnics, swimming pool, baseball diamond, tennis courts, croquet course and horse shoe range, wading pool, caretakers residence and a bath house.

Services now are being held in the old Scott County Milling Company building on Center Street in the downtown area.

When the church was formed, Nov. 24, 1965, there were 120 members.

Enrollment is now 153.

Dr. Thomas Messer is the interim pastor.

The church is operating on a $41,050 budget for 1966. A. J. Day, chairman of the budget committee, said that $20,000 of the proposed budget is in building funds.

Trustees for the church are Sherman Grant, chairman, Lewis Conley and Pat Groves.

Members of the board of deacons are Rudy Chittenden, chairman, Marshall McGill, vice chairman, Sgt. Ben Ledbetter, secretary, A. B. Heuiser, John Peel, Orrin Hunt, Groves, Conley, Day, Mitchell Payne, David Mulcahy and James Beaird.

Cohen Denies Man's Charge

WASHINGTON AP -- Commissioner Sheldon S. Cohen of the Internal Revenue Service has denied that a former IRS agent was fired because he refused to join in a "fix."

The former agent, Archie P. Sherar, testified last week before a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., that he had been ordered to falsify records in a 1962 tax dispute between clients of a San Francisco accountant, Nathan Friedman, and the IRS. Sherar said he believed Friedman was a personal friend of former IRS Commissioner Mortimer M. Caplin.

In a letter sent Wednesday to Long, Cohen said Sherar had been discharged "because he refused to cooperate and furnish records for the audit of his own tax returns."

He said; "There is no foundation to the allegation of a personal relationship" between Caplin and Friedman.

$90,000 Loan for Water System

NEW MADRID -- A $90,000 loan to 156 New Madrid County rural families to develop a public water system has been approved by the Farmers Home Administration, J. E. Jose, state director, Columbia, announced today.

About 750 persons will be served in the water district.

Untreated water has been obtained in the post in the area from shallow wells, which is subject to pollution danger.

The plan for the water system has been approved by the Missouri health department.

In addition to water for domestic purposes, the plan provides for 16 fire hydrants which will supply limited fire protection.

Rioters Burn Jeep

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- Hundreds of antigovernment demonstrators poured toward downtown Saigon tonight and burned a U. S. military police jeep a few hours after Buddhist leaders demanded that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime pledge publicly to give way to a civilian government in five or six months.

No Americans were reported injured.

"End the war immediately," said one of the banners carried by the demonstrators.

A battalion of paratroopers waded into the rioters and sent them scurrying down side streets. Some began regrouping to continue their descent on the downtown area in the fifth continuous day of unrest in the capital's streets.

The Buddhist hierarchy earlier instructed its militant young supporters to remain quiet until the junta replied to turn over power to a popularly elected constituent assembly within five or six months.

The Buddhist statement said the government has promised this privately.

Hopes that the month-long political crisis was easing a bit were jolted when 500 demonstrators emerged from the Buddhist compound on the outskirts of the city. As they marched toward the center of the city with their familiar anti-government banners, they attracted hundreds of supporters.

ST. PAUL, Minn. AP -- Dr. Herbert W. Schmidt, 62, who served on the staff of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., for 26 years and was medical director of Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co., died Wednesday.

Daylight Savings Time Fans Happy

ST. LOUIS AP -- Daylight savings time lovers in St. Louis hailed results Wednesday of elections in 11 other Missouri cities in which voters indicated approval of "fast time" for this summer.

"This is a strong indication of the growing awareness of the benefits of daylight savings time," said Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the Chamber of Commerce of metropolitan St. Louis.

St. Louis has had DST in the summer for years and many of the area's recreational programs depend on it for an extra hour of light.

Recently, Congress passed a bill putting the whole nation on daylight savings time unless individual state legislatures vote to put their state on standard time.

Missouri congressmen failed in an attempt to modify the bill so that portions of a state --such as eastern Missouri-- could go on DST while the rest of the state stayed on standard time.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce embarked on a program to sell DST to the rest of Missouri in hopes the legislature wouldn't kill the plan for St. Louis.

Kaufmann said the Chamber is planning a "vigorous educational program next fall" throughout the state.

Tuesday, 11 cities, most of them in southeast Missouri, approved DST in straw votes. Only one-Malden - turned it down by 10 votes.

Approving DST in principle were Charleston, Dexter, Chaffee, Lilbourn, Sikeston, East Prairie, New Madrid and Morehouse in Southeast Missouri and Rolla, Fulton and Jefferson City in the central section.

Their city governments still must take formal action.

Most of the cities voting decided to have fast time begin on Memorial Day and end Labor Day. In St. Louis, it will begin April 24 and end the last Sunday in October. These are the dates mentioned in the new federal law.

CHRISTIANITY'S BIRTHDAY

It's a fine time of year. The quickening of spring is on the land and April 10 will be Easter Sunday. We are reminded of Irving Berlin's famous song, Easter Parade. The lyrics paint a vivid picture of the lighter side of this day and the melody comes back to our mind as we read the words--"In your Easter bonnet, with all the frills upon it, You'll be the grandest lady in the Easter Parade." The musical genius of Mr. Berlin and the appalling inventiveness of the female mind have combined to make the Easter bonnet a kind of contemporary symbol of the observance of Easter. Tens of millions of Christians attending church on Easter Sunday morning may have a new bonnet, many millions more around the world will not, but the meaning of the day will be the same for all. Following the crucifixion, Christ rose in both body and spirit and Christianity was born.

For those of us who live in the northern hemisphere, it seems fitting that this time should come in the spring of the year--a time for new bonnets and for rebirth and growth after the rigors of winter. And for Christians everywhere, it is a time of rededication and renewed faith in the way of the Lord as a guide to a better life and a peaceful world.

HYPERTENSION AND CORONARY RISK

Going up?

Your blood pressure, that is.

It could be creeping up quietly, without your being aware of it. Unless you have had it checked recently by a doctor.

This is definitely not a case of "what you don't know won't hurt you," the Missouri Heart Association warns. Not only can hypertension (the medical name for high blood pressure) do serious damage to blood vessels, heart and kidneys; it also considerably increases the patient's risk of developing coronary heart disease.

A scant 15 years ago, there was relatively little physicians could do to modify the course of hypertension. Since that time modern medicine has achieved one of its most dramatic successes. The story can be told in statistics: between 1950 and 1962, the death rate from hypertension dropped 52% among middle-aged American men and women (ages 45-64).

The "secret weapon" in the successful counterattack on hypertension is really an arsenal: several potent new drugs which singly, or in various combinations, can bring down high blood pressure and keep it down -- if the disease is detected and treated early.

While doctors were making these impressive inroads on hypertension's toll in human lives, scientists exploring the natural history of coronary heart disease made a disquieting discovery, indicating hypertension on a new count.

Among the more than 5,000 persons participating in the Framingham (Mass.) study during the past 15 years, those with blood pressure even slightly above the normal range were found to be running significantly more than the usual risk of having a heart attack for their age group. After 10 years those with frankly high pressures had an incidence of coronary disease four times that of subjects with normal blood pressure. And when high blood pressure was found in combination with obesity or high blood cholesterol or diabetes, the risk was multiplied enormously.

These findings of the Framingham study have urgent significance for the estimated 7 million Americans with hypertension but as yet no heart disease. (In 10 million, heart disease linked to high blood pressure has already appeared.) An attack on this reservoir of potential heart disease might well be reflected in the coronary heart disease mortality tables a few years hence.

Because high blood pressure can encroach and advance without producing any warning symptoms, the importance of regular physical examinations cannot be stressed too often, the Missouri Heart Association notes. Regular physical examination will bring high blood pressure to light.

In a fraction of cases, diagnosis followed by workup may lead to discovery of a specific cause, which can often be corrected. In the majority of cases (those with "essential" hypertension, meaning that no specific cause can be identified) early treatment can be instituted to reverse the course of the disease before serious damage has been done.

The new pressure-lowering drugs are only a part--albeit the major part--of the attack on hypertension. Other measures to control blood pressure include:

* Reduction of excess weight, since overweight aggravates the condition and the risk of heart attack;

* Cessation of cigarette smoking, because smoking just one or two cigarettes brings an immediate rise in blood pressure; also smoking is an added coronary risk factor;

* In suitable cases, reduction of salt intake in the diet, if the doctor prescribes it.

You and your doctor can work together now to control your blood pressure and reduce your risk of having a heart attack. Meanwhile, scientists all over the world are working to discover and eliminate the underlying causes of all cardiovascular disease. Until they do, the Missouri Heart Association urges, give yourself a head start in heading off heart attacks.

The dedicated service of Rep. Tom Baker of Stoddard county in the state legislature produces an immediate reaction of sorrow that more talented, financially independent men can't be induced to hold public office.

A self-made, successful business man, Baker made his mark in the legislature. He not only served his country well but the Bootheel and the people of Missouri as well. His shoes will be difficult to fill.

Baker did not give his constituents token service. In the legislative system, seniority has a great deal to do with effectiveness and he served for three terms before deciding to give up politics. The pressures on him to quit must have been great from the day he started his legislative service. His constituents are fortunate that he was willing to serve them so long.

His faithfulness to duty will be long remembered. He not only served ably, conscientiously and well but he never missed a day's service at a regular session during his six years in the legislature. Not many legislators can claim a record like that and in some cases, of course, the state would benefit if some legislators never showed up for a roll call.

Missouri gained from Baker's authorship of conflict of interest legislation, which restricts public officials from the temptation of trying to serve two or more financial masters and makes it particularly difficult for them to be subservient to special interests while holding public office.

The state will have cleaner, better government because of Baker's efforts to apply safeguards.

His work in behalf of billboard legislation also is appreciated by the residents of Missouri.

Some measure of his service was apparent from the outset of his work in the legislature by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat award to him as most effective first term legislator in 1961.

Under the circumstances there is now nothing left to do but express appreciation to Tom for a job well done and to respect his understandable eagerness to devote more time to his business interests.

THE PRIVATE ENTERPRISE STORY

It is reported that a recent survey of 1,200 young adults (in the 18 to 25 age group) showed that 36 per cent believed that the electric power industry is mostly owned by the government, that 32 per cent did not know the name of their local company, and that 46 per cent did not know that the company is investor-owned.

If this is generally true of that section of our population, it displays a woeful ignorance of some important economic facts. The government--despite the endless campaign to socialize the electric utilities--does not own most of the power industry. The truth is that about 80 per cent of all our electricity is provided by the investor-owned companies and that figure has remained fairly constant over a period of years.

One other finding in this survey is of interest. According to it, 52 per cent of the young adults favor investor ownership of utilities, as against 39 per cent favoring some form of public ownership and 9 per cent offering no opinion. And it is reasonable to suggest that the percentage on the private ownership side would be much larger if there was more widespread knowledge of the important tax factor that is involved. On the average, private utilities pay 25 per cent of all their revenues in taxes -- to the federal government, the states, the counties, the towns and various taxing districts. The public systems either pay nothing or relatively small sums in lieu of taxes. And, in many instances, they are operated on a tax-subsidized basis -- which means at the expense of us all.

The private enterprise story--in the utility field or any other--can't be retold too often.

YOU ARE YOUR IMAGE

Down in the Ozarks they tell a story about a hillbilly who went to an auction and saw his first mirror. When he looked into it he thought it was a picture of his "dear old pappy". He bought the mirror for seventy-five cents. He put it up in the attic where he could frequently sneak away to admire what he thought was a picture of his old pappy. His wife missing him around, became suspicious. So one day while her husband was out hoeing the corn, she went up to the attic and took a look. As she peered into the mirror, she exclained: "Ah ha! That is the old hag he is running around with."

You may not recognize yourself in the mirror of life, but you are your image. You go forth to people through your appearance, your thoughts, your emotions, your words and acts. You spend your lifetime shaping your image, as a sculptor creates a statue. Your image is the sum total of the way you think, the impressions you've received, the life you have lived.

A WISE DECISION

A group of customers of a California power company tried to persuade the state's public utility commission that the company's expenditures for advertising and public relations should not be considered in rate making.

They lost -- the commission unanimously held with the utility. And this caused the San Francisco News Call Bulletin to make an apt editorial comment:

The company, it said, "...has the right and the practical necessity to enhance its public image through advertising and public service programs.

"As a regulated corporation, it is under constant spur to maintain and improve performance and is required by the realities of the business world to report on those efforts to its customers and its thousands of stockholders.

"In its action... the PUC upheld a previous policy of recognizing 'the value of advertising and sales promotion by utilities.' The principle is sound, and the decision was wise."

Opposition to regarding utility advertising as a legitimate business cost seems to be based, in part at least, on the theory that inasmuch as these enterprises don't compete directly with each other, they don't need promotion. That is a truly empty theory. As part of their endless expansion and betterment programs, which run into billions of dollars a year, the utilities constantly seek more investors, more customers and more use of their product. And it is their success in this field which has done much to give us the ultimate in service at amazingly low rates.

When and if the question arises, the California decision should be followed everywhere.

Dead To The World

H. L. Hunt Says

OLD AND NEW

Merchandisers and advertisers tell us that the two surefire words for selling any product are "free" and "new." Check the slogans on packages you see in your local supermarket and you can confirm this for yourself.

Everyone likes the idea of getting goods and services "free," so few look for the hard realities behind the heady prospect. Where government programs are involved, many people love to bask in the illusion of "free money" -- until the time comes to pay their taxes.

The appeal of "free" as a slogan arises from people not thinking at all. The appeal of "new" does have some basis in reason and reality. There are genuinely new products and processes being developed all the time and it is natural to want them if you can afford them. You know that in the free market a new product or process can be expected to be better than the old one, or it could not compete with the old one in the market-place.

And that's the crux of the matter. A product or a process is not good because it is new, but good because it is better than the old one. Too often we forget this, and extend our love of the new into the realm of ideas where it is far from automatically true that any new idea is better than any old one. That has to be proved; and the thinking person will want the proof before being sold on an idea simply because it is advertised, like a detergent, as "NEW" in big capital letters. HLH

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Since the justice department has denied that it is investigating Jack Anderson and me in connection with the alleged theft of Sen. Tom Dodd's papers, it might be well to tell in detail the story of what happened.

While the question of whether we are under investigation is not particularly important, what is important is whether the justice department is probing little people while giving immunity to a senator who is a member of the establishment and a close friend of the White House.

Let's begin at the beginning.

When the FBI starts to investigate anyone, the person under investigation usually hears about it right away. Friends call up and say that G-men have been around to ask questions.

So when G-men began interviewing employees of Sen. Dodd about us and where we obtained documents, we heard about it immediately. Jack Anderson then telephoned Jack Rosenthal, Justice Department Press Relations officer and a conscientious one, to ask why we were under investigation rather than Senator Dodd.

Anderson also asked whether the justice department had investigated Sen. John Williams, R-Del., and his acquisition of government reports and income tax statements in the Bobby Baker case; also whether the justice department had investigated Sen. Dodd and how he acquired state department documents in the Otepka case.

A PERSONAL ANSWER

Mr. Rosenthal said he would call back with an answer. The answer came in the form of a request that we come down to see the Attorney General himself.

The usual newspaper inquiry to the justice department is answered by the press department, not by the Attorney General in person. However, Jack Anderson and I were glad to go to the AG's office where we were greeted by Mr. Katzenbach, a kindly, patient man who looks as if he didn't always enjoy the unpleasant duties of his office; and by Fred Vinson, Jr., chief of the criminal division.

Fred was a young squirt and a star player on the St. Alban's baseball team when a member of our family was going to school there and when his daddy, the late great chief justice of the United States, used to come round to the house to play bridge with Mrs. P. I never dreamed in those days that young Fred would be called in as chief of the criminal division on the other side of the table from me in a criminal investigation.

However, he was very polite and decent about it.

There ensued a reasonably friendly, though at times vigorous, conversation during which the justice department did try to draw a line between investigating us and investigating the documents which Sen. Dodd claims we stole. However, the line was very thin indeed.

The Attorney General tried to make it clear that he was investigating the alleged theft of Dodd's documents, but he did not make it clear how he could do this without investigating those who allegedly stole them.

STRENGTHENING DODD

At about the same time this conversation was taking place, nine FBI agents were at work doing just the opposite of what the Attorney General said was being done. In other words, they were asking questions about Anderson and me.

On one occasion, FBI agents worked so closely with Dodd that they actually sat in one of the senator's committee offices, calling in members of his staff and giving the district impression that the senator, an ex-FBI man, was running the investigation. They were acting under instructions from the justice department.

The questions which FBI agents asked about us had these two important effects:

1. To intimidate witnesses previously willing to testify regarding Dodd. Several of Dodd's employees have been so shocked at his conduct that they have been willing to go on the witness stand.

Attorney General Katzenbach has proposed a law making it a criminal offense to harass or intimidate a witness who has given information to help law enforcement. The prospective witnesses in the Dodd case were certainly helping law enforcement in a most courageous manner -- against a very high official. The FBI interrogation certainly didn't encourage them.

2. The investigation played into Dodd's hands by raising a smoke screen about stolen documents when the real issue is whether a senator violated the law and the ethics of high public office.

If and when the case does go to court, the senator can claim the evidence is tainted.

Incidentally, we have stolen no documents.

Real clincher in this whole business is that three weeks ago we offered the justice department the evidence and a list of witnesses in the Dodd case. However, since we persuaded the witnesses to testify, not one witness has been questioned regarding Dodd's conduct. Instead they have been cross-examined and, in effect, intimidated regarding stolen documents and about Pearson and Anderson.

With all due respect, Mr. Katzenbach, that is not the way to make democracy live.

Inside Labor

Gala Tower Suite Party Shows No President Ever as Close to Labor as LBJ.

New York: -- If Ambassador Arthur Goldberg decides to change careers again, he'll do mighty well as a stage director.

That was evident at the historic party he gave in his 42nd floor Waldorf Towers residence last Saturday night (April 2) in honor of his intimate friend, David Dubinsky, whose retirement as president of the garment workers made global news recently.

The gala was replete with nostalgia, proletarian songs, gay music and a unique tribute from President Johnson.

Even Walter Reuther sang as composer-pianist Harold Rome hit the piano with "Sing Me a Song of Social Significance"; and "Gene and Francesca" did folk song renditions of old sweatshop era tunes.

There were 40 selected guests, hand-picked by the ambassador, but it was an intimate gathering nonetheless.

However, the true social significance of the soiree was the intimacy it exhibited which exists between the "elders" of labor and the President of the U.S.

Had the pressure of war not been upon him, Lyndon Johnson and his lady would have been there. He could not come, but shortly after dinner Ambassador Goldberg, spokesman for the U.S. to the world congress of nations, arose and read a letter from the White House.

"Dear Arthur: I envy you and Dorothy tonight," said the note. "You are enjoying the privilege of honoring an American Tradition. Every advance towards a great and decent society has been aided by the trail-blazing of pioneers who were determined to help build a better life for people. David Dubinsky is one of those pioneers.

"Though I can't be with you personally, Ladybird and I send warm greetings to a good man is now on the honor roll of American citizens whose leadership enriched the lives of their fellow men."

As the burst of applause eased, Mr. Goldberg looked about the room in which were the U.N.'s Ralph Bunche; Alex Rose, labor's own American blend of Noel Coward and Harold Wilson; soft-spoken Louis Stulberg; garment union president, and Walter Reuther.

The ambassador, with feigned reluctance, said the time had come for speeches -- short ones -- not such as those delivered at the U.N. or some labor conventions. Even Walter Reuther laughed at the sally. (Newsmen have been known to run a pool on the length of the auto union leader's talks.)

But Reuther kept the faith. He was brief and also significant. He and Arthur, he said, were "disciples" of Dave Dubinsky.

And true it is. These men have made a new world. They have come a long way from the days of Franklin Roosevelt.

Here they were being hosted by a man who had once been their own attorney. He had gone the gamut-labor policy maker, member of the President's Cabinet, Supreme Court Justice and Chief Representative of the U.S. to the U.N.

As the new president of the ladies garment workers, Lou Stulberg, put it, the world had been made. Now new generations were coming up and they would soon come unto their own. Today's labor leaders had but to "hold the torch" for a bit longer and then make way.

But it was still the world of the labor men gathered there in Arthur Goldberg's tower suite.

Only one man was missing -- George Meany. He would have been there but for his post-operative confinement in the Harkness Pavilion because of hip surgery. But the ambassador had accompanied Mr. Dubinsky to Mr. Meany's bedside the day before the dinner party.

There, on the dresser, was a basket of flowers. It was from President and Mrs. Johnson--the first flowers to arrive. Mr. Johnson had had White House aides keep in close touch with the hospital.

There is significance in the warm letter to the party, and in the party itself and in the flowers. These are not just the mark of good politics. They are the evidence of a strong bond, a friendship superseding the necessities of a balanced ticket and a balanced party.

They mark a friendship which never was achieved by either the aristocratic FDR, the courthouse square-ish HST, or the Bostonian JFK.

"The others were our friends," said one of the labor men after the dinner party, "but nothing like Lyndon Johnson ever happened to the labor movement before."

ASHLAND, Va. AP -- Friday, at the busiest hour of the busiest day of the week, all the wheels stop turning in this little college town in the Hanover County countryside 12 miles north of Richmond.

At the stroke of noon, every store, bank, office, will close its doors. Housewives will desert their kitchens. Students and faculty, at Randolph-Macon College will suspend classes.

And, because it's Good Friday--the sacred commemoration of Christ's crucifixion--everyone will go to church.

The worship of Duncan Memorial Methodist church, which also is the Randolph-Macon chapel, lasts until 1 p.m. Then the normal hustle and bustle of Friday business will resume.

It's been that way in this town of 3,000 since 1964, when the Ashland Ministerial Association won unanimous consent from the business community for its experiment.

Thus, in the minds of two young ministers -- John R. Simmons of the Christian Church and McAllister C. Marshall of the Episcopal Church -- there grew the idea of a one-hour service, with prominent preachers from outside the community, which everyone might attend.

Its success hinged on the ability of people to get to the church for 60 minutes.

The Chamber of Commerce balked at closing businesses at first.

So did Ashland's only Jewish business owner.

Randolph-Macon agreed to suspend its classes from noon to 1 p.m. on each Good Friday. One by one, the local businesses fell in line as community pressure rose

Only the Duncan Memorial church now is big enough to accommodate the crowd that turns out for the Good Friday service. This year, the speaker will be the Rev. Zeh Holler, a Presbyterian minister working toward his doctorate at Richmond's Union Theological Seminary.

And all around town, the wheels of commerce will stop spinning while he talks.

CHRISTIANITY'S BIRTHDAY

It's a fine time of year. The quickening of spring is on the land and April 10 will be Easter Sunday. We are reminded of Irving Berlin's famous song, Easter Parade. The lyrics paint a vivid picture of the lighter side of this day and the melody comes back to our mind as we read the words--"In your Easter bonnet, with all the frills upon it, You'll be the grandest lady in the Easter Parade." The musical genius of Mr. Berlin and the appalling inventiveness of the female mind have combined to make the Easter bonnet a kind of contemporary symbol of the observance of Easter. Tens of millions of Christians attending church on Easter Sunday morning may have a new bonnet, many millions more around the world will not, but the meaning of the day will be the same for all. Following the crucifixion, Christ rose in both body and spirit and Christianity was born.

For those of us who live in the northern hemisphere, it seems fitting that this time should come in the spring of the year--a time for new bonnets and for rebirth and growth after the rigors of winter. And for Christians everywhere, it is a time of rededication and renewed faith in the way of the Lord as a guide to a better life and a peaceful world.

It is reported that a recent survey of 1,200 young adults (in the 18 to 25 age group) showed that 36 per cent believed that the electric power industry is mostly owned by the government, that 32 per cent did not know the name of their local company, and that 46 per cent did not know that the company is investor-owned.

If this is generally true of that section of our population, it displays a woeful ignorance of some important economic facts. The government--despite the endless campaign to socialize the electric utilities--does not own most of the power industry. The truth is that about 80 per cent of all our electricity is provided by the investor-owned companies and that figure has remained fairly constant over a period of years.

One other finding in this survey is of interest. According to it, 52 per cent of the young adults favor investor ownership of utilities, as against 39 per cent favoring some form of public ownership and 9 per cent offering no opinion. And it is reasonable to suggest that the percentage on the private ownership side would be much larger if there was more widespread knowledge of the important tax factor that is involved. On the average, private utilities pay 25 per cent of all their revenues in taxes -- to the federal government, the states, the counties, the towns and various taxing districts. The public systems either pay nothing or relatively small sums in lieu of taxes. And, in many instances, they are operated on a tax-subsidized basis -- which means at the expense of us all.

The private enterprise story--in the utility field or any other--can't be retold too often.

A New York bus was rather crowded recently. One of the passengers suddenly buried his head in his hands and the man next to him asked him if he was sick.

"It's nothing like that," said the man. "It's just that I can't stand to see old ladies stand up."

YOU ARE YOUR IMAGE

Down in the Ozarks they tell a story about a hillbilly who went to an auction and saw his first mirror. When he looked into it he thought it was a picture of his "dear old pappy". He bought the mirror for seventy-five cents. He put it up in the attic where he could frequently sneak away to admire what he thought was a picture of his old pappy. His wife missing him around, became suspicious. So one day while her husband was out hoeing the corn, she went up to the attic and took a look. As she peered into the mirror, she exclained: "Ah ha! That is the old hag he is running around with."

You may not recognize yourself in the mirror of life, but you are your image. You go forth to people through your appearance, your thoughts, your emotions, your words and acts. You spend your lifetime shaping your image, as a sculptor creates a statue. Your image is the sum total of the way you think, the impressions you've received, the life you have lived.

Our real selves cannot be hidden. We cannot live behind a facade. People find us out. "What you are," said Emerson "Thunders so loud I can't hear what you say to the contrary."

A WISE DECISION

A group of customers of a California power company tried to persuade the state's public utility commission that the company's expenditures for advertising and public relations should not be considered in rate making.

They lost -- the commission unanimously held with the utility. And this caused the San Francisco News Call Bulletin to make an apt editorial comment:

The company, it said, "...has the right and the practical necessity to enhance its public image through advertising and public service programs.

"As a regulated corporation, it is under constant spur to maintain and improve performance and is required by the realities of the business world to report on those efforts to its customers and its thousands of stockholders.

"In its action. . . the PUC upheld a previous policy of recognizing 'the value of advertising and sales promotion by utilities.' The principle is sound, and the decision was wise."

Opposition to regarding utility advertising as a legitimate business cost seems to be based, in part at least, on the theory that inasmuch as these enterprises don't compete directly with each other, they don't need promotion. That is a truly empty theory. As part of their endless expansion and betterment programs, which run into billions of dollars a year, the utilities constantly seek more investors, more customers and more use of their product. And it is their success in this field which has done much to give us the ultimate in service at amazingly low rates.

When and if the question arises, the California decision should be followed everywhere.

"Well, my boy, what would you do with a million dollars?" he asked the youth.

H. L. Hunt Says

OLD AND NEW

Merchandisers and advertisers tell us that the two sure-fire words for selling any product are "free" and "new." Check the slogans on packages you see in your local supermarket and you can confirm this for yourself.

Everyone likes the idea of getting goods and services "free," so few look for the hard realities behind the heady prospect. Where government programs are involved, many people love to bask in the illusion of "free money" -- until the time comes to pay their taxes.

The appeal of "free" as a slogan arises from people not thinking at all. The appeal of "new" does have some basis in reason and reality. There are genuinely new products and processes being developed all the time and it is natural to want them if you can afford them. You know that in the free market a new product or process can be expected to be better than the old one, or it could not compete with the old one in the market-place.

And that's the crux of the matter. A product or a process is not good because it is new, but good because it is better than the old one. Too often we forget this, and extend our love of the new into the realm of ideas where it is far from automatically true that any new idea is better than any old one. That has to be proved; and the thinking person will want the proof before being sold on an idea simply because it is advertised, like a detergent, as "NEW" in big capital letters. HLH

ASHLAND, Va. AP -- Friday, at the busiest hour of the busiest day of the week, all the wheels stop turning in this little college town in the Hanover County countryside 12 miles north of Richmond.

At the stroke of noon, every store, bank, office, will close its doors. Housewives will desert their kitchens. Students and faculty, at Randolph-Macon College will suspend classes.

And, because it's Good Friday --the sacred commemoration of Christ's crucifixion-- everyone will go to church.

The worship of Duncan Memorial Methodist church, which also is the Randolph - Macon chapel, lasts until 1 p.m. Then the normal hustle and bustle of Friday business will resume.

It's been that way in this town of 3,000 since 1964, when the Ashland Ministerial Association won unanimous consent from the business community for its experiment.

Thus, in the minds of two young ministers -- John R. Simmons of the Christian Church and McAllister C. Marshall of the Episcopal Church -- there grew the idea of a one-hour service, with prominent preachers from outside the community, which everyone might attend.

Its success hinged on the ability of people to get to the church for 60 minutes.

The Chamber of Commerce balked at closing businesses at first.

So did Ashland's only Jewish business owner.

Randolph - Macon agreed to suspend its classes from noon to 1 p.m. on each Good Friday. One by one, the local businesses fell in line as community pressure rose

Only the Duncan Memorial church now is big enough to accommodate the crowd that turns out for the Good Friday service. This year, the speaker will be the Rev. Zeh Holler, a Presbyterian minister working toward his doctorate at Richmond's Union Theological Seminary.

And all around town, the wheels of commerce will stop spinning while he talks.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Since the justice department has denied that it is investigating Jack Anderson and me in connection with the alleged theft of Sen. Tom Dodd's papers, it might be well to tell in detail the story of what happened.

While the question of whether we are under investigation is not particularly important, what is important is whether the justice department is probing little people while giving immunity to a senator who is a member of the establishment and a close friend of the White House.

Let's begin at the beginning.

When the FBI starts to investigate anyone, the person under investigation usually hears about it right away. Friends call up and say that G-men have been around to ask questions.

So when G-men began interviewing employees of Sen. Dodd about us and where we obtained documents, we heard about it immediately. Jack Anderson then telephoned Jack Rosenthal, Justice Department Press Relations officer and a conscientious one, to ask why we were under investigation rather than Senator Dodd.

Anderson also asked whether the justice department had investigated Sen. John Williams, R-Del., and his acquisition of government reports and income tax statements in the Bobby Baker case; also whether the justice department had investigated Sen. Dodd and how he acquired state department documents in the Otepka case.

A PERSONAL ANSWER

Mr. Rosenthal said he would call back with an answer. The answer came in the form of a request that we come down to see the Attorney General himself.

The usual newspaper inquiry to the justice department is answered by the press department, not by the Attorney General in person. However, Jack Anderson and I were glad to go to the AG's office where we were greeted by Mr. Katzenbach, a kindly, patient man who looks as if he didn't always enjoy the unpleasant duties of his office; and by Fred Vinson, Jr., chief of the criminal division.

Fred was a young squirt and a star player on the St. Alban's baseball team when a member of our family was going to school there and when his daddy, the late great chief justice of the United States, used to come round to the house to play bridge with Mrs. P. I never dreamed in those days that young Fred would be called in as chief of the criminal division on the other side of the table from me in a criminal investigation.

However, he was very polite and decent about it.

There ensued a reasonably friendly, though at times vigorous, conversation during which the justice department did try to draw a line between investigating us and investigating the documents which Sen. Dodd claims we stole. However, the line was very thin indeed.

The Attorney General tried to make it clear that he was investigating the alleged theft of Dodd's documents, but he did not make it clear how he could do this without investigating those who allegedly stole them.

STRENGTHENING DODD

At about the same time this conversation was taking place, nine FBI agents were at work doing just the opposite of what the Attorney General said was being done. In other words, they were asking questions about Anderson and me.

On one occasion, FBI agents worked so closely with Dodd that they actually sat in one of the senator's committee offices, calling in members of his staff and giving the district impression that the senator, an ex-FBI man, was running the investigation. They were acting under instructions from the justice department.

The questions which FBI agents asked about us had these two important effects:

1. To intimidate witnesses previously willing to testify regarding Dodd. Several of Dodd's employees have been so shocked at his conduct that they have been willing to go on the witness stand.

Attorney General Katzenbach has proposed a law making it a criminal offense to harass or intimidate a witness who has given information to help law enforcement. The prospective witnesses in the Dodd case were certainly helping law enforcement in a most courageous manner -- against a very high official. The FBI interrogation certainly didn't encourage them.

2. The investigation played into Dodd's hands by raising a smoke screen about stolen documents when the real issue is whether a senator violated the law and the ethics of high public office.

If and when the case does go to court, the senator can claim the evidence is tainted.

Incidentally, we have stolen no documents.

Real clincher in this whole business is that three weeks ago we offered the justice department the evidence and a list of witnesses in the Dodd case. However, since we persuaded the witnesses to testify, not one witness has been questioned regarding Dodd's conduct. Instead they have been cross - examined and, in effect, intimidated regarding stolen documents and about Pearson and Anderson.

With all due respect, Mr. Katzenbach, that is not the way to make democracy live.

Inside Labor

Gala Tower Suite Party Shows No President Ever as Close to Labor as LBJ.

New York: -- If Ambassador Arthur Goldberg decides to change careers again, he'll do mighty well as a stage director.

That was evident at the historic party he gave in his 42nd floor Waldorf Towers residence last Saturday night (April 2) in honor of his intimate friend, David Dubinsky, whose retirement as president of the garment workers made global news recently.

The gala was replete with nostalgia, proletarian songs, gay music and a unique tribute from President Johnson.

Even Walter Reuther sang as composer - pianist Harold Rome hit the piano with "Sing Me a Song of Social Significance"; and "Gene and Francesca" did folk song renditions of old sweatshop era tunes.

There were 40 selected guests, hand-picked by the ambassador, but it was an intimate gathering nonetheless.

However, the true social significance of the soiree was the intimacy it exhibited which exists between the "elders" of labor and the President of the U.S.

Had the pressure of war not been upon him, Lyndon Johnson and his lady would have been there. He could not come, but shortly after dinner Ambassador Goldberg, spokesman for the U. S. to the world congress of nations, arose and read a letter from the White House.

"Dear Arthur: I envy you and Dorothy tonight," said the note. "You are enjoying the privilege of honoring an American Tradition. Every advance towards a great and decent society has been aided by the trail-blazing of pioneers who were determined to help build a better life for people. David Dubinsky is one of those pioneers.

"Though I can't be with you personally, Ladybird and I send warm greetings to a good man is now on the honor roll of American citizens whose leadership enriched the lives of their fellow men."

As the burst of applause eased, Mr. Goldberg looked about the room in which were the U. N.'s Ralph Bunche; Alex Rose, labor's own American blend of Noel Coward and Harold Wilson; soft - spoken Louis Stulberg; garment union president, and Walter Reuther.

The ambassador, with feigned reluctance, said the time had come for speeches -- short ones -- not such as those delivered at the U.N. or some labor conventions. Even Walter Reuther laughed at the sally. (Newsmen have been known to run a pool on the length of the auto union leader's talks.)

But Reuther kept the faith. He was brief and also significant. He and Arthur, he said, were "disciples" of Dave Dubinsky.

And true it is. These men have made a new world. They have come a long way from the days of Franklin Roosevelt.

Here they were being hosted by a man who had once been their own attorney. He had gone the gamut - labor policy maker, member of the President's Cabinet, Supreme Court Justice and Chief Representative of the U.S. to the U.N.

As the new president of the ladies garment workers, Lou Stulberg, put it, the world had been made. Now new generations were coming up and they would soon come unto their own. Today's labor leaders had but to "hold the torch" for a bit longer and then make way.

But it was still the world of the labor men gathered there in Arthur Goldberg's tower suite.

Only one man was missing -- George Meany. He would have been there but for his post-operative confinement in the Harkness Pavilion because of hip surgery. But the ambassador had accompanied Mr. Dubinsky to Mr. Meany's bedside the day before the dinner party.

There, on the dresser, was a basket of flowers. It was from President and Mrs. Johnson--the first flowers to arrive. Mr. Johnson had had White House aides keep in close touch with the hospital.

There is significance in the warm letter to the party, and in the party itself and in the flowers. These are not just the mark of good politics. They are the evidence of a strong bond, a friendship superseding the necessities of a balanced ticket and a balanced party.

They mark a friendship which never was achieved by either the aristocratic FDR, the courthouse square-ish HST, or the Bostonian JFK.

"The others were our friends," said one of the labor men after the dinner party, "but nothing like Lyndon Johnson ever happened to the labor movement before."

Mrs. Helen Jones is the state chairman of the American Heritage committee.

Mrs. F. D. Rolwing gave an interesting talk on the great earthquake of 1811 and 1812. On Dec. 10, the first of a long series of earthquakes occurred. Another very severe one was in January and another one in February, 1812, caused most of the inhabitants of New Madrid to flee their homes. There were few people killed though the earth rose and fell in long ripples, some miles long. There were strong fumes and much smoke. For one whole day the Mississippi river flowed backward and many boats were wrecked and their cargoes thrown along the banks. The government allowed the people of the area claims of other lands not already settled. Most of these claims were brought up by speculators and many overlapped.

Nationally little notice was taken of this great catastrophe which caused many people to lose all they had. This was due to the remote area from the principal cities, sparce population and the interest and excitement of the War of 1812.

Mrs. Rolwing Gives DAR Program

Mrs. Joe Ellis, Jr., and Miss Lucille Howlett were hostesses to the King's Highway Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the Charlestonian in Charleston Monday. Mrs. William Huff, the regent, presided and opened the meeting with the ritual. Miss Margaret Harris gave the National Defense Report, an article in the United States News by David Lawrence on treason and the importance of Congress passing laws to punish those giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

Mrs. John Wilson read the President General's message on the importance of having a delegate to the Seventy-fifth Continental Congress in Washington.

Mrs. Hayward reported that a Sikeston fifth grade student had won the state essay contest. The award will be made at a school assembly. Mrs. Jones reported that the girl sponsored by the D. A. R. for the school of the Ozarks had been placed on a waiting list.

Mrs. Joseph L. Baker's account of the state meeting included a blue ribbon award for having the most members for havng the most members at the district meeting.

Mrs. Helen Jones is the state chairman of the American Heritage committee.

Mrs. F. D. Rolwing gave an interesting talk on the great earthquake of 1811 and 1812. On Dec. 10, the first of a long series of earthquakes occurred. Another very severe one was in January and another one in February, 1812, caused most of the inhabitants of New Madrid to flee their homes. There were few people killed though the earth rose and fell in long ripples, some miles long. There were strong fumes and much smoke. For one whole day the Mississippi river flowed backward and many boats were wrecked and their cargoes thrown along the banks. The government allowed the people of the area claims of other lands not already settled. Most of these claims were brought up by speculators and many overlapped.

Nationally little notice was taken of this great catastrophe which caused many people to lose all they had. This was due to the remote area from the principal cities, sparce population and the interest and excitement of the War of 1812.

Robinson Lifts Orioles Over Yankees With Homer

Fortunately for the Baltimore Orioles, Frank Robinson is not four years younger.

If he were, the 30-year-old Robinson probably would still be with the Cincinnati Reds, and the Orioles would not have his potent bat to help them in their quest for the American League pennant.

Robinson socked his eighth homer of the spring Wednesday, a two-run blast that gave the Orioles a 2-0 victory over the New York Yankees.

The veteran outfielder rapped three hits, raising his exhibition average to .388. The homer, following Curt Blefary's double in the sixth inning, increased his runs batted in total to 17.

All of this has come in Robinson's first spring away from the Reds, for whom he toiled for 10 seasons. He was traded last Dec. 9 for pitchers Milt Pappas and Jack Baldschun and outfielder Dick Simpson.

Robinson's homer supported the combined two-hit pitching of Jim Palmer, Eddie Watt and Stu Miller. Palmer held the Yankees hitless for five innings, but pitcher Al Downing doubled against Watt in the sixth.

Ray Sadecki and Dennis Aust collaborated on a four-hitter as St. Louis downed Philadelphia 5-1. George Kernek drove in three Cardinal runs and lashed two singles and a double.

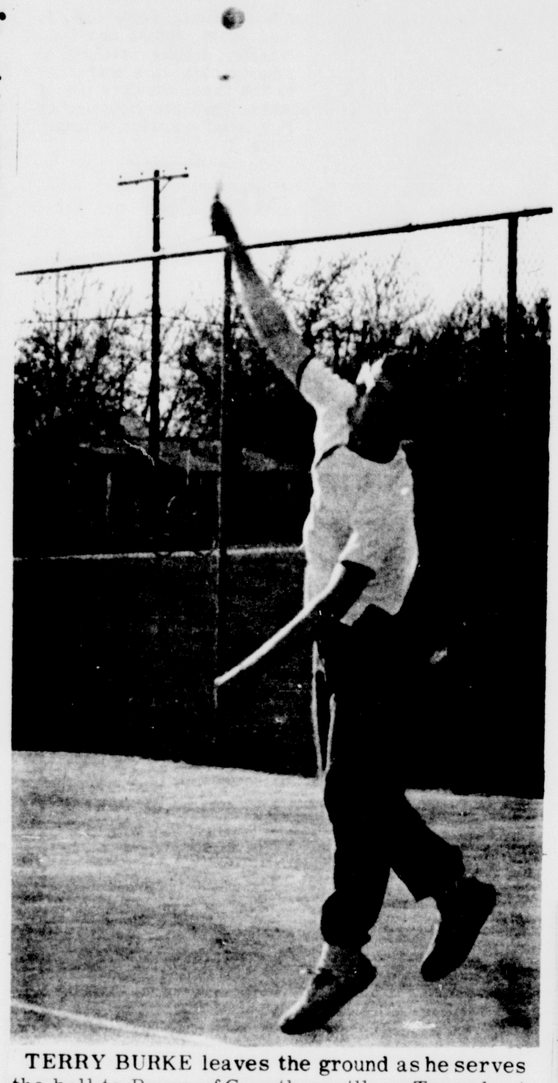

Cincinnati edged Minnesota 3-2 on Tommy Harper's run-scoring infield single in the ninth inning. Deron Johnson singled, raced to second as Pete Cimino uncorked a wild pitch, moved to third on a ground out and dashed across as Harper beat out the hit down the third base line.

A seven-run explosion in the sixth inning carried Boston past the New York Mets 8-7. Tony Conigliaro doubled across one run in the inning and walked with the bases loaded for the eventual winning run. Dick Stuart hit a three-run homer for the Mets in the eighth.

Cleveland nipped Los Angeles 6-5 on Bill Davis' bases-loaded, run-scoring single in the ninth. Duke Sims and Larry Brown homered earlier for the Indians.

Eddie Mathews homered in the first inning and sparked Atlanta to a 3-1 victory over Houston while Ty Cline's run-scoring single and Wes Covington's sacrifice fly gave the Chicago Cubs a 3-1 victory over California.

Kansas City defeated Washington 5-1 with a 14-hit attack, including three hits each by Bert Campaneris, Jose Tartabull and Ken Suarez.

TERRY BURKE leaves the ground as he serves the ball to Bruce of Caruthersville as Terry beat his opponent 6-0 and 7-5.

Bulldog Golfers Win First Game

Sikeston's Bulldog golf team won its first match of the season yesterday by defeating Caruthersville 167-174. Sikeston Golfer Charles Stamp fired the low number of strokes for the day with a 37. Ned Matthews shot a 40, David Whiteaker shot a 43, and Charles Atchison shot a 47. Scores for Caruthersville ran 42, 43, 44, and 45.

Sikeston's tennis team failed to do as well as the golf team. They were defeated 6 to 2 by Caruthersville. In singles Terry Burke of Sikeston beat Bruce of Caruthersville 6-0 and 7-5. Wythe Miller lost to Caruthersville's Hendricks 6-2 and 6-3. In doubles Gray and Teroy of Caruthersville beat Ron Hill and Jerry Humes of Sikeston, 6-3, and 6-0. Bulldog netmen Terry Burke and Wythe Miller beat Hendricks and Bruce 8-5. Sikeston lost four other matches, all of which were pressed for time. They were Caruthersville's Gary beating Hank Lippert 6-2, Teroy over Jerry Humes 6-3, Whitefield over Ron Hill 6-1, and McAlister over Brad Crumpecker 6-2. The Bulldog tennis team journey's to Kennett today. Coach Richmond says "they should do better as today was their first match of the season and the newer boys should be settled down more to competition."

Sikeston's athlete's in Golf, Track and Tennis will travel to Kennett today for competition, with each event beginning at 1 p.m. Schools from Cape, Poplar Bluff, Dexter, Portageville, Caruthersville and host Kennett will compete in the track events.

This should prove to be a very good meet in having most of the top track schools in Southeast Missouri competing.

The weather will be fine for each event and Sikeston's cindermen should prove to be up to their potential in this match.

Cards Win With 13 Hit Attack

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA. -- Just when it seemed that the Cardinals' offense might qualify for aid under the war on poverty, things began breaking right for them. George Kernek and Alex Johnson brightened the picture with robust hitting -- and Ray Sadecki got into the pitching act, too.

Sadecki pitched the Red Birds to a tidy 5-1 exhibition triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night at Al Lang Field.

Sadecki delighted Manager Red Schoendienst with a brilliant performance and reliever Dennis Aust then breezed past the Phils, bringing from the Redhead an enthusiastic burst:

"Our pitching's great, isn't it?"

The htting wasn't bad, either, in the Cardinals' next-to-last appearance in Florida. With Kernek enjoying a perfect 3-for-3 and driving in three runs, and Johnson stroking three straight hits against his old club, the Red Birds quickly took command in their return match.

GET 13 HITS

Just the night before, at the Phils' Clearwater base, the Cardinal attack looked impotent in a 2-0 loss in which no fewer than 13 runners were stranded. They made the most of a 13-hit punch this time.

Hawks Blast Lakers 120-113

Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Player-coach Richie Guerin of the St. Louis Hawks was all smiles as he handed a telegram to everyone who came near him in the dressing room Wednesday night.

"You did okay against a bunch of cripples," it read, "but how are you doing against a healthy team." It was signed by "A Laker Fan."

"I guess we showed him," said Guerin, who had an ice pack on his bad leg.

Guerin and his Hawks had just outshot the healthy Los Angeles Lakers for a 120-113 victory, their first in three games of the final playoff of the National Basketball Association's Western Division.

Their 64 per cent shooting from the field gave them a 62-56 halftime lead. They finished with a 52.2 per cent, continuing the hot hand that gave them three straight victories over the injured Baltimore Bullets in the semi-final round.

Across from Guerin, who scored 24 points, was Bill Bridges, whose weight reducing program has added much-needed heft to the St. Louis offense.

Bridges sank 12 of 17 shots and picked off 17 rebounds.

"I've been concentrating on getting down from the 240 I've weighed ever since I came into the league five years ago," said the husky forward, who now weighs 224. "I think it's helped a lot on my jump shot."

The teams tangle in the fourth game of the best of seven set Saturday night in St. Louis.

Robinson Lifts Orioles Over Yankees With Homer

Fortunately for the Baltimore Orioles, Frank Robinson is not four years younger.

If he were, the 30-year-old Robinson probably would still be with the Cincinnati Reds, and the Orioles would not have his potent bat to help them in their quest for the American League pennant.

Robinson socked his eighth homer of the spring Wednesday, a two-run blast that gave the Orioles a 2-0 victory over the New York Yankees.

The veteran outfielder rapped three hits, raising his exhibition average to .388. The homer, following Curt Blefary's double in the sixth inning, increased his runs batted in total to 17.

All of this has come in Robinson's first spring away from the Reds, for whom he toiled for 10 seasons. He was traded last Dec. 9 for pitchers Milt Pappas and Jack Baldschun and outfielder Dick Simpson.

Robinson's homer supported the combined two-hit pitching of Jim Palmer, Eddie Watt and Stu Miller. Palmer held the Yankees hitless for five innings, but pitcher Al Downing doubled against Watt in the sixth.

Ray Sadecki and Dennis Aust collaborated on a four-hitter as St. Louis downed Philadelphia 5-1. George Kernek drove in three Cardinal runs and lashed two singles and a double.

Cincinnati edged Minnesota 3-2 on Tommy Harper's run-scoring infield single in the ninth inning. Deron Johnson singled, raced to second as Pete Cimino uncorked a wild pitch, moved to third on a ground out and dashed across as Harper beat out the hit down the third base line.

A seven-run explosion in the sixth inning carried Boston past the New York Mets 8-7. Tony Conigliaro doubled across one run in the inning and walked with the bases loaded for the eventual winning run. Dick Stuart hit a three-run homer for the Mets in the eighth.

Cleveland nipped Los Angeles 6-5 on Bill Davis' bases-loaded, run-scoring single in the ninth. Duke Sims and Larry Brown homered earlier for the Indians.

Eddie Mathews homered in the first inning and sparked Atlanta to a 3-1 victory over Houston while Ty Cline's run-scoring single and Wes Covington's sacrifice fly gave the Chicago Cubs a 3-1 victory over California.

Kansas City defeated Washington 5-1 with a 14-hit attack, including three hits each by Bert Campaneris, Jose Tartabull and Ken Suarez.

TERRY BURKE leaves the ground as he serves the ball to Bruce of Caruthersville as Terry beat his opponent 6-0 and 7-5.

Bulldog Golfers Win First Game

Sikeston's Bulldog golf team won its first match of the season yesterday by defeating Caruthersville 167-174. Sikeston Golfer Charles Stamp fired the low number of strokes for the day with a 37. Ned Matthews shot a 40, David Whiteaker shot a 43, and Charles Atchison shot a 47. Scores for Caruthersville ran 42, 43, 44, and 45.

Sikeston's tennis team failed to do as well as the golf team. They were defeated 6 to 2 by Caruthersville. In singles Terry Burke of Sikeston beat Bruce of Caruthersville 6-0 and 7-5. Wythe Miller lost to Caruthersville's Hendricks 6-2 and 6-3. In doubles Gray and Teroy of Caruthersville beat Ron Hill and Jerry Humes of Sikeston, 6-3, and 6-0. Bulldog netmen Terry Burke and Wythe Miller beat Hendricks and Bruce 8-5. Sikeston lost four other matches, all of which were pressed for time. They were Caruthersville's Gary beating Hank Lippert 6-2, Teroy over Jerry Humes 6-3, Whitefield over Ron Hill 6-1, and McAlister over Brad Crumpecker 6-2. The Bulldog tennis team journey's to Kennett today. Coach Richmond says "they should do better as today was their first match of the season and the newer boys should be settled down more to competition."

Sikeston's athlete's in Golf, Track and Tennis will travel to Kennett today for competition, with each event beginning at 1 p.m. Schools from Cape, Poplar Bluff, Dexter, Portageville, Caruthersville and host Kennett will compete in the track events.

This should prove to be a very good meet in having most of the top track schools in Southeast Missouri competing.

The weather will be fine for each event and Sikeston's cindermen should prove to be up to their potential in this match.

Cards Win With 13 Hit Attack

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA. -- Just when it seemed that the Cardinals' offense might qualify for aid under the war on poverty, things began breaking right for them. George Kernek and Alex Johnson brightened the picture with robust hitting -- and Ray Sadecki got into the pitching act, too.

Sadecki pitched the Red Birds to a tidy 5-1 exhibition triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night at Al Lang Field.

Sadecki delighted Manager Red Schoendienst with a brilliant performance and reliever Dennis Aust then breezed past the Phils, bringing from the Redhead an enthusiastic burst:

"Our pitching's great, isn't it?"

The hting wasn't bad, either, in the Cardinals' next-to-last appearance in Florida. With Kernek enjoying a perfect 3-for-3 and driving in three runs, and Johnson stroking three straight hits against his old club, the Red Birds quickly took command in their return match.

GET 13 HITS

Just the night before, at the Phils' Clearwater base, the Cardinal attack looked impotent in a 2-0 loss in which no fewer than 13 runners were stranded. They made the most of a 13-hit punch this time.

Hawks Blast Lakers 120-113

Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Player-coach Richie Guerin of the St. Louis Hawks was all smiles as he handed a telegram to everyone who came near him in the dressing room Wednesday night.

"You did okay against a bunch of cripples," it read, "but how are you doing against a healthy team." It was signed by "A Laker Fan."

"I guess we showed him," said Guerin, who had an ice pack on his bad leg.

Guerin and his Hawks had just outshot the healthy Los Angeles Lakers for a 120-113 victory, their first in three games of the final playoff of the National Basketball Association's Western Division.

Their 64 per cent shooting from the field gave them a 62-56 halftime lead. They finished with a 52.2 per cent, continuing the hot hand that gave them three straight victories over the injured Baltimore Bullets in the semi-final round.

Across from Guerin, who scored 24 points, was Bill Bridges, whose weight reducing program has added much-needed heft to the St. Louis offense.

Bridges sank 12 of 17 shots and picked off 17 rebounds.

"I've been concentrating on getting down from the 240 I've weighed ever since I came into the league five years ago," said the husky forward, who now weighs 224. "I think it's helped a lot on my jump shot."

The teams tangle in the fourth game of the best of seven set Saturday night in St. Louis.

Mets And Cards Picked to Finish in Cellar

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Maloney and Sammy Ellis, Cincinnati's answer to Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, may not make fans forget the Dodgers duo, but they could lead the pitching-rich Reds to the National League pennant.

Although Koufax and Drysdale have returned to the Dodgers staff following a collective 32-day holdout, the addition of trade-acquired Milt Pappas and Jack Baldschun to the Reds' pitching staff figures to lift them to the top spot for the first time since 1961.

But Maloney and Ellis will have to do for the Reds what Koufax and Drysdale did for the world champion Dodgers last year — provide that EXTRA that teams need to come out in front in the perennial five or six-team battle for the NL flag.

The Cincinnati duo won 42 games between them last year, joining Koufax and Drysdale as the only 20-victory pairs in the majors. Maloney outdid Koufax in one department by pitching two no-hitters, and Ellis put together his 22 victories in his first season as a starter.

Here then is the predicted order of finish:

1. Cincinnati
2. Atlanta
3. San Francisco
4. Los Angeles
5. Philadelphia
6. Pittsburgh
7. Chicago
8. Houston
9. St. Louis
10. New York

The Cubs can't win the pennant, even with Leo Durocher as manager. The Astros still are trying to lay the foundation.

That leaves six possibilities, and any one of them could wind up on top after game No. 162. However, the edge seems to be with the Reds because of their strong pitching.

For starters there are Maloney, Ellis, Pappas, veterans Joey Jay, Joe Nuxhall and John Tsitouris and Jim O'Toole, who had a disastrous 1965, with a 3-10 record but at 29 should be able to make a substantial comeback.

Baldschun, who appeared in 65 games for Philadelphia last year, adds strength to the bullpen that was weak last season. He will join fireballing Billy McCool, giving the Reds a solid righty-lefty combine.

To get Pappas, the Reds gave up hard-hitting Frank Robinson, but there shouldn't be too much of a drop-off in run production with such bats in the line-up as Deron Johnson, Gordy Coleman, Vada Pinson, Pete Rose, young, improving Tommy Harper and rookie infielder Tommy Helms.

Atlanta has all the ingredients with heavy hitting in Hank Aaron, Joe Torre and Ed Mathews plus solid pitching in 24-game winner Tony Cloninger, Ken Johnson and Wade Blasingame. The Braves also may be helped psychologically by having left Milwaukee.

The Giants have the incomparable Willie Mays and one of the best pitchers in the business, Juan Marichal. That's enough to make them pennant material. In addition, Lindy McDaniel will be valuable in the bullpen.

With Koufax, Drysdale and Maury Wills, the Dodgers have to be a contender. But the big question is how much the two hurlers will be affected by the 32 days they were away from camp.

If they can catch up quickly, the Dodgers will be right up there. If they fall behind at the start, the defending champs may have trouble catching up.

The Phillies again have shuffled their cards, acquiring Bill White and Dick Groat to go with a hard-hitting combine of Rich Allen and Johnny Callison. Jim Bunning, Chris Short and Ray Culp form a top crew of starters.

The Pirates also have heavy shellers in Willie Stargell, Donn Clendenon and batting champion Roberto Clemente. Vern Law, Bob Veale, and Don Cardwell, along with reliever Al McBean, form a solid pitching corps.

Still, Cincinnati would seem to have the edge in pitching quality. It was good enough for the Dodgers last year, and it should be good enough for the Reds this year.

Dodgers Favored To Win Pennant Cards 15-1

LES VEGAS, NEV. AP -- Las Vegas oddsmakers have made the Los Angeles Dodgers 2½-1 favorites to win the National League pennant since they've signed Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale.

The Dodgers were 3½-1 behind San Francisco at 2½-1 before the pitchers ended their 32-day holdout.

Tuesday the Giants were 3-1, Cincinnati 5-1, Pittsburgh 6-1, Atlanta 8-1, St. Louis 15-1, Chicago, 50-1, and New York and Houston, 100-1.

In the American League, Baltimore and Minnesota were 3-1 favorites, New York and Detroit 5-1, Chicago 6-1, Cleveland 8-1, California 20-1, and Boston, Washington and Kansas City 100-1.

Thief Lifts Home Plate

PITTSBURGH AP -- Somebody stole home at Forbes Field, but it wasn't one of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Groundskeeper Eddie Dunn discovered that home plate was missing while taking some measurements at the field Tuesday.

"They not only took home plate here on the diamond," Dunn moaned, "but they swiped those in the bullpens, too."

Iowa State Takes On Mizzou

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Back home from a Texas trip that was too costly, Missouri opens defense of its Big Eight baseball crown against Iowa State here Friday and Saturday.

The Tigers and Cyclones will play a Friday double-header on Rollins Field starting at 1 p.m. -- with Saturday's single affair set for the same time.

Ol' Mizzou took a 3-3 record into the Wednesday afternoon road finale with Ft. Sam Houston. The Bengals beat Randolph Air Force Base, Texas A & M and West Texas State -- but lost to Trinity, Sam Houston State and St. Mary's.

Coach John (Hi) Simmons still will be trying to stabilize his shaky outfield in this important series. Speedy Ray Thorpe hurt a shoulder in the Trinity opener and returned home for treatment. In the fourth game with Texas A & M, rookie Ron Coleman fractured his left arm in a collision at home-plate.

Thorpe, regular left-fielder, is doubtful for this weekend's activity. Coleman, who had 8 hits in 15 trips including two homers, apparently is through for the year.

Sophomores Jim Loving and Ken Layden, and Barry Lubeck, are the leading candidates for the two vacancies -- with veteran Gene Stephenson in right field.

Iowa State, a one-time winner in four games with Minnesota, has one of the league's foremost hurlers. Tim Van Galder, the Big Eight's top passer last fall, is Coach Cap Timm's No. 1 chucker -- while Bob Ziegler, basketball standout, is due to pitch here also.

Simmons likely will rely on his proven moundsmen -- Orville Hollrah, Terry L'Ange, Mike Eader and Bob Carpenter -- for duty against Iowa State. However, sophomore Mike McFarland earned Simmons' esteem by striking out 10 Randolph Air Force batsmen in four innings.

Unable to work outdoors at Ames, the Cyclones arrived in Tigertown Thursday for an afternoon workout on the Mizzou diamond. Coolish 50-degree weather was in prospect for the three-game set.

Mizzou Travels To Norman Sat.

COLUMBIA, Mo.--Coach Tom Boots foresees an end to Mizzou's lengthy string of dual and triangular meet wins down in Norman this Saturday.

Mizzou's all-winning figure--now 31 straight--will be an easy target for Coach J. D. Martin's Sooners, Botts figures.

"They'll probably win by 20 or 30 points," says the veteran M.U. coach. "In fact, Oklahoma --unless something happens along the way -- will be the team to beat in the Big Eight outdoor meet."

Always thin in javelin and triple-jump talent, Missouri won't profit from the additional outdoor events. Sprinter-hurdler Charlie Brown also is more effective at the shorter indoor distances.

The league's best high-jumpers -- Ron Tull of Oklahoma and M.U.'s Steve Herndon--will renew their private quarrel this week. Tull unseated Herndon as the reigning conference king with a 6-10 1/2 leap indoors. Herndon cleared 6-10 at the N.C.A.A. indoor meet to out-do his O.U. rival.

Except in the distance races, the high hurdles and shotput, however, the Bengals won't have equivalent resources. Still trying to shake off the effects of a heavy cold is Charlie Conrad, veteran 880-mile doubler, who had to forego the Texas Relays trip.

Tigers Picked To Take Pennant

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Picking the American League used to be a breeze. Put the Yankees on top, Washington at the bottom and then fill in the spaces. It doesn't work out that way any more.

It probably is safe to eliminate Kansas City, Boston and Washington before a bat is swung in anger. After that sixth-place finish, 25 games back, New York almost goes into the same category. Almost, but not quite.

There are those who believe the Yankees still may awaken and regain their lost glory. However, they are in the minority. Mickey Mantle is only a pinch hitter, Tony Kubek is retired and Jim Bouton still is looking for that fast ball.

This shapes up like a typical National League-type race with five of six teams having a chance at it. Minnesota has the bombers and Baltimore has added Frank Robinson's power. Eddie Stanky has the Chicago White Sox hustling and Cleveland is thinking big.

Granted that every club has a weakness that could prove fatal, Detroit looks like the best bet to this observer with a good balance of young and experienced pitching and pretty fair sock. Chuck Dressen will cook the chili and pull the strings. All he needs is a solid bullpen man and a little bit of luck in avoiding injuries.

At this time of year on a clear day you can see forever. It may look different in October. The following predicted order is guaranteed to put the kiss of death on the Tigers:

1. Detroit
2. Baltimore
3. Minnesota
4. Chicago
5. New York
6. Cleveland
7. California
8. Washington
9. Boston
10. Kansas City

Dressen can match any staff with Denny McLain, Joe Sparman, Mickey Lolich from the kiddie corps and Bill Monboquette and Hank Aguirre from the oldsters. With Dave Wickersham for relief or spot starts, it looks like the best staff in the league.

A healthy Al Kaline and the slugging of Willie Horton and Norm Cash give Detroit solid run potential. The infield is solid, but not brilliant, and the addition of Dick Tracewski to back up the regulars should help. The Tigers are very thin in catching behind Bill Freehan.

Baltimore has the big boom with Boog Powell, Frank Robinson, Curt Blefary and Brooks Robinson but the absence of Dick Brown, who underwent brain surgery, leaves a gap in the catching department. It remains to be seen if Hank Bauer can find enough pitching to make up for the loss of Milt Pappas to Cincinnati. Dave McNally and Steve Barber on the starting line and Dick Hall and Stu Miller in the bullpen are the solid staff members.

There is a disposition to believe that the Twins won't do it again but this may be a horrible mistake. With Harmon Killebrew, Tony Oliva, Don Mincher, Jimmie Hall and Zoilo Versalles the defending champs have plenty of muscle. A second base gap and a leaky defense are the drawbacks. A healthy Camilo Pascual and a repeat of 1965 by Mudcat Grant could carry the Twins right into another World Series.

Stanky has been doing it with mirrors so far this spring, just like Al Lopez did for years with the White Sox. The pitching is only as solid as the bullpen pair of Eddie Fisher and Hoyt Wilhelm, who has been handicapped by a broken finger. The Sox hung in there last year, finishing second with Juan Pizarro winning only six games. If Eddie can do better he should be the manager of the year.

The Yanks' problems are many, starting with Mantle who has been limited to pinch hitting duties as he recuperates from shoulder surgery. Roger Maris appears to be back in the groove and Elston Howard is healthy.

Whitey Ford and Mel Stottlemyre are the solid pitchers. Two rookies, Roy White and Bobby Murcer, can hit but it remains to be seen if they can do the job in the field.

Cleveland packs good power in Rocky Colavito, Leon Wagner, Max Alvis and Fred Whitfield. Sam McDowell, Sonny Siebert and Luis Tiant provide a pitching nucleus.

The Angels hope to make a splash in their new Anaheim, Calif., home but the first division probably is beyond reach. Washington's pitchers have been getting bombed in the South and Gil Hodges may be pressed to hold eighth place. Boston still hits homers, but the youth program still is light years away. Kansas City has brought in Alvin Dark to handle a club that is short of everything but hope although their hitters can shake up a few pitchers.

FISHING FACTS

You can't miss! Or can you? With exciting reports of fishing rolling in from lakes over the southern half of the country, it's difficult to understand why anyone going afloat should not bring home a bushel of big bass.

Yet it happens often, say the fishing experts, usually to the angler who neglects the basic rules of fish finding.

Despite their willingness to strike, springtime bass must be stalked almost as deliberately as during any other time of year, but not necessarily in the same locations.

Small fish can be found in the shallows, as they quickly respond to warming conditions first noted in bays and along the flats. Surface and shallow-running lures will usually give better results than natural baits.

To discover the big fish, you'll have to work the bottom, as in any season. Though lunkers make feeding forays into the shallows, they tend to spend most of their hours in the intermediate regions. To reach them, select deep-running or bottom-bumping lures.

Time of day is less critical during this period than a few months from now. If you want to sleep late, go ahead. Several hours of sunshine may be required to provoke underwater activity.

If you approach springtime bass fishing in a methodical manner, you can't miss. But you still must fish in the right places.

Society itself suffers when people are allowed to sacrifice identity in the damp laundry of mediocrity.

Baseball Suit Closed, Decision This Weekend

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee-Atlanta tug of war over the Braves is nearing an opening day showdown.

The State of Wisconsin made a dramatic shift in position Wednesday as the trial of its antitrust suit against the Braves and the National League closed with an oratorical clang.

Special counsel Willard S. Stafford asked Judge Elmer W. Roller to order the Braves back to Milwaukee this season only if the league failed to agree by Tuesday to give Milwaukee an expansion team for 1967.

Tuesday is when the Braves are scheduled to open their National League season in Atlanta after 13 years in Milwaukee.

It was the first time the state publicly dropped its unconditional demand for baseball in 1966, a demand baseball officials have said could not possibly be met.

Baseball has not ruled out expansion to include Milwaukee in 1967.

Roller, who was told by baseball attorneys that he could not succeed in ordering the Braves back to Milwaukee, reserved decision in the case until this weekend. The white-haired Milwaukee County circuit court judge promised a ruling by Saturday or Sunday.

Baseball attorneys went through with their final arguments as if no offer had been made. But Baseball Commissioner William Eckert said in Washington:

"This is a development that the National League will have to take under consideration. It will have to be studied. So many times, I wish this matter can be settled to everyone's advantage. Baseball will have to take a good look at it."

Roller already has ordered the Braves and the league to prepare for baseball in Milwaukee this season, but a superior court judge in Fulton County, Ga., has told the Braves to honor their contract to play in Atlanta. A U.S. district court judge in Houston, Tex., has been asked for a permanent injunction to keep the Braves in the South.

Mets And Cards Picked to Finish in Cellar

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Maloney and Sammy Ellis, Cincinnati's answer to Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, may not make fans forget the Dodgers duo, but they could lead the pitching-rich Reds to the National League pennant.

Although Koufax and Drysdale have returned to the Dodgers staff following a collective 32-day holdout, the addition of trade-acquired Milt Pappas and Jack Baldschun to the Reds' pitching staff figures to lift them to the top spot for the first time since 1961.

But Maloney and Ellis will have to do for the Reds what Koufax and Drysdale did for the world champion Dodgers last year — provide that EXTRA that teams need to come out in front in the perennial five or six-team battle for the NL flag.

The Cincinnati duo won 42 games between them last year, joining Koufax and Drysdale as the only 20-victory pairs in the majors. Maloney outdid Koufax in one department by pitching two no-hitters, and Ellis put together his 22 victories in his first season as a starter.

Here then is the predicted order of finish:

1. Cincinnati
2. Atlanta
3. San Francisco
4. Los Angeles
5. Philadelphia
6. Pittsburgh
7. Chicago
8. Houston
9. St. Louis
10. New York

The Cubs can't win the pennant, even with Leo Durocher as manager. The Astros still are trying to lay the foundation.

That leaves six possibilities, and any one of them could wind up on top after game No. 162. However, the edge seems to be with the Reds because of their strong pitching.

For starters there are Maloney, Ellis, Pappas, veterans Joey Jay, Joe Nuxhall and John Tsitouris and Jim O'Toole, who had a disastrous 1965, with a 3-10 record but at 29 should be able to make a substantial comeback.

Baldschun, who appeared in 65 games for Philadelphia last year, adds strength to the bullpen that was weak last season. He will join fireballing Billy McCool, giving the Reds a solid righty-lefty combine.

To get Pappas, the Reds gave up hard-hitting Frank Robinson, but there shouldn't be too much of a drop-off in run production with such bats in the line-up as Deron Johnson, Gordy Coleman, Vada Pinson, Pete Rose, young, improving Tommy Harper and rookie infielder Tommy Helms.

Atlanta has all the ingredients with heavy hitting in Hank Aaron, Joe Torre and Ed Mathews plus solid pitching in 24-game winner Tony Cloninger, Ken Johnson and Wade Blasingame. The Braves also may be helped psychologically by having left Milwaukee.

The Giants have the incomparable Willie Mays and one of the best pitchers in the business, Juan Marichal. That's enough to make them pennant material. In addition, Lindy McDaniel will be valuable in the bullpen.

With Koufax, Drysdale and Maury Wills, the Dodgers have to be a contender. But the big question is how much the two hurlers will be affected by the 32 days they were away from camp.

If they can catch up quickly, the Dodgers will be right up there. If they fall behind at the start, the defending champs may have trouble catching up.

The Phillies again have shuffled their cards, acquiring Bill White and Dick Groat to go with a hard-hitting combine of Rich Allen and Johnny Callison. Jim Bunning, Chris Short and Ray Culp form a top crew of starters.

The Pirates also have heavy shellers in Willie Stargell, Donn Clendenon and batting champion Roberto Clemente. Vern Law, Bob Veale, and Don Cardwell, along with reliever Al McBean, form a solid pitching corps.

Still, Cincinnati would seem to have the edge in pitching quality. It was good enough for the Dodgers last year, and it should be good enough for the Reds this year.

Iowa State Takes On Mizzou

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Back home from a Texas trip that was too costly, Missouri opens defense of its Big Eight baseball crown against Iowa State here Friday and Saturday.

The Tigers and Cyclones will play a Friday double-header on Rollins Field starting at 1 p.m. -- with Saturday's single affair set for the same time.

Ol' Mizzou took a 3-3 record into the Wednesday afternoon road finale with Ft. Sam Houston. The Bengals beat Randolph Air Force Base, Texas A & M and West Texas State -- but lost to Trinity, Sam Houston State and St. Mary's.

Coach John (Hi) Simmons still will be trying to stabilize his shaky outfield in this important series. Speedy Ray Thorpe hurt a shoulder in the Trinity opener and returned home for treatment. In the fourth game with Texas A & M, rookie Ron Coleman fractured his left arm in a collision at home-plate.

Thorpe, regular left-fielder, is doubtful for this weekend's activity. Coleman, who had 8 hits in 15 trips including two homers, apparently is through for the year.

Sophomores Jim Loving and Ken Layden, and Barry Lubeck, are the leading candidates for the two vacancies -- with veteran Gene Stephenson in right field.

Iowa State, a one-time winner in four games with Minnesota, has one of the league's foremost hurlers. Tim Van Galder, the Big Eight's top passer last fall, is Coach Cap Timm's No. 1 chucker -- while Bob Ziegler, basketball standout, is due to pitch here also.

Simmons likely will rely on his proven moundsmen -- Orville Hollrah, Terry L'Ange, Mike Eader and Bob Carpenter -- for duty against Iowa State. However, sophomore Mike McFarland earned Simmons' esteem by striking out 10 Randolph Air Force batsmen in four innings.

Unable to work outdoors at Ames, the Cyclones arrived in Tigertown Thursday for an afternoon workout on the Mizzou diamond. Coolish 50-degree weather was in prospect for the three-game set.

Dodgers Favored To Win Pennant Cards 15-1

LES VEGAS, NEV. AP -- Las Vegas oddsmakers have made the Los Angeles Dodgers 2½-1 favorites to win the National League pennant since they've signed Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale.

The Dodgers were 3½-1 behind San Francisco at 2½-1 before the pitchers ended their 32-day holdout.

Tuesday the Giants were 3-1, Cincinnati 5-1, Pittsburgh 6-1, Atlanta 8-1, St. Louis 15-1, Chicago, 50-1, and New York and Houston, 100-1.

In the American League, Baltimore and Minnesota were 3-1 favorites, New York and Detroit 5-1, Chicago 6-1, Cleveland 8-1, California 20-1, and Boston, Washington and Kansas City 100-1.

Thief Lifts Home Plate

PITTSBURGH AP -- Somebody stole home at Forbes Field, but it wasn't one of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Groundskeeper Eddie Dunn discovered that home plate was missing while taking some measurements at the field Tuesday.

"They not only took home plate here on the diamond," Dunn moaned, "but they swiped those in the bullpens, too."

Mizzou Travels To Norman Sat.

COLUMBIA, Mo.--Coach Tom Boots foresees an end to Mizzou's lengthy string of dual and triangular meet wins down in Norman this Saturday.

Mizzou's all-winning figure--now 31 straight--will be an easy target for Coach J. D. Martin's Sooners, Botts figures.

"They'll probably win by 20 or 30 points," says the veteran M.U. coach. "In fact, Oklahoma --unless something happens along the way -- will be the team to beat in the Big Eight outdoor meet."

Always thin in javelin and triple-jump talent, Missouri won't profit from the additional outdoor events. Sprinter-hurdler Charlie Brown also is more effective at the shorter indoor distances.

The league's best high-jumpers -- Ron Tull of Oklahoma and M.U.'s Steve Herndon--will renew their private quarrel this week. Tull unseated Herndon as the reigning conference king with a 6-10 1/2 leap indoors. Herndon cleared 6-10 at the N.C.A.A. indoor meet to out-do his O.U. rival.

Except in the distance races, the high hurdles and shotput, however, the Bengals won't have equivalent resources. Still trying to shake off the effects of a heavy cold is Charlie Conrad, veteran 880-mile doubler, who had to forego the Texas Relays trip.

Tigers Picked To Take Pennant

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Picking the American League used to be a breeze. Put the Yankees on top, Washington at the bottom and then fill in the spaces. It doesn't work out that way any more.

It probably is safe to eliminate Kansas City, Boston and Washington before a bat is swung in anger. After that sixth-place finish, 25 games back, New York almost goes into the same category. Almost, but not quite.

There are those who believe the Yankees still may awaken and regain their lost glory. However, they are in the minority. Mickey Mantle is only a pinch hitter, Tony Kubek is retired and Jim Bouton still is looking for that fast ball.

This shapes up like a typical National League-type race with five of six teams having a chance at it. Minnesota has the bombers and Baltimore has added Frank Robinson's power. Eddie Stanky has the Chicago White Sox hustling and Cleveland is thinking big.

Granted that every club has a weakness that could prove fatal, Detroit looks like the best bet to this observer with a good balance of young and experienced pitching and pretty fair sock. Chuck Dressen will cook the chili and pull the strings. All he needs is a solid bullpen man and a little bit of luck in avoiding injuries.

At this time of year on a clear day you can see forever. It may look different in October. The following predicted order is guaranteed to put the kiss of death on the Tigers:

1. Detroit
2. Baltimore
3. Minnesota
4. Chicago
5. New York
6. Cleveland
7. California
8. Washington
9. Boston
10. Kansas City

Dressen can match any staff with Denny McLain, Joe Sparman, Mickey Lolich from the kiddie corps and Bill Monboquette and Hank Aguirre from the oldsters. With Dave Wickersham for relief or spot starts, it looks like the best staff in the league.

A healthy Al Kaline and the slugging of Willie Horton and Norm Cash give Detroit solid run potential. The infield is solid, but not brilliant, and the addition of Dick Traceski to back up the regulars should help. The Tigers are very thin in catching behind Bill Freehan.

Baltimore has the big boom with Boog Powell, Frank Robinson, Curt Blefary and Brooks Robinson but the absence of Dick Brown, who underwent brain surgery, leaves a gap in the catching department. It remains to be seen if Hank Bauer can find enough pitching to make up for the loss of Milt Pappas to Cincinnati. Dave McNally and Steve Barber on the starting line and Dick Hall and Stu Miller in the bullpen are the solid staff members.

There is a disposition to believe that the Twins won't do it again but this may be a horrible mistake. With Harmon Killebrew, Tony Oliva, Don Mincher, Jimmie Hall and Zoilo Versalles the defending champs have plenty of muscle. A second base gap and a leaky defense are the drawbacks. A healthy Camilo Pascual and a repeat of 1965 by Mudcat Grant could carry the Twins right into another World Series.

Stanky has been doing it with mirrors so far this spring, just like Al Lopez did for years with the White Sox. The pitching is only as solid as the bullpen pair of Eddie Fisher and Hoyt Wilhelm, who has been handicapped by a broken finger. The Sox hung in there last year, finishing second with Juan Pizarro winning only six games. If Eddie can do better he should be the manager of the year.

The Yanks' problems are many, starting with Mantle who has been limited to pinch hitting duties as he recuperates from shoulder surgery. Roger Maris appears to be back in the groove and Elston Howard is healthy.

Whitey Ford and Mel Stottlemyre are the solid pitchers. Two rookies, Roy White and Bobby Murcer, can hit but it remains to be seen if they can do the job in the field.

Cleveland packs good power in Rocky Colavito, Leon Wagner, Max Alvis and Fred Whitfield. Sam McDowell, Sonny Siebert and Luis Tiant provide a pitching nucleus.

The Angels hope to make a splash in their new Anaheim, Calif., home but the first division probably is beyond reach. Washington's pitchers have been getting bombed in the South and Gil Hodges may be pressed to hold eighth place. Boston still hits homers, but the youth program still is light years away. Kansas City has brought in Alvin Dark to handle a club that is short of everything but hope although their hitters can shake up a few pitchers.

Baseball Suit Closed, Decision This Weekend

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee-Atlanta tug of war over the Braves is nearing an opening day showdown.

The State of Wisconsin made a dramatic shift in position Wednesday as the trial of its antitrust suit against the Braves and the National League closed with an oratorical clang.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

"Look and see if there is any sorrow like my sorrow which was brought upon me." (Lamentations 1:12, RSV)

PRAYER: Lord Jesus, we worship Thee for Thine infinite love and obedience to the Father. Accept our hearts and lives as our meager gratitude for Thy sufferings. Give us grace to be wholly Thine in life and death, and to pray, as Thou has taught us, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . Amen."

Looking Back Over the Years

The wheat crop in the Sikeston District is looking very well, having gone through the winter in pretty good shape. Some fields were damaged by the fly in the early fall and it remains to be seen whether these pests bother the fields in the spring.

The new home of the Benton Bank is nearing completion and they hope to move in soon. This will be modern in every respect, having it's own heating and lighting plants with the second floor divided into office rooms.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: In regard to that boxer dog that snored so loud he kept the neighbors awake, please tell the owners about a surgical correction that can eliminate the dog's snoring. The operation is performed under anesthesia and is painless.

Also, Ann, your readers might be interested to know that it is no longer necessary to put up with a barking dog all hours day and night. A surgical procedure can "debark" a dog very easily. The animal does not know that he has been debarked and he continues to bark, but the sound is muted and it disturbs no one. -- NS., D.V.M.

Dear N.S.: I checked with my own "D.V.M." in Chicago, (his initials are P.O.L.) and he tells me that the de-snoring operation is peachy, but he would not fool around with the debarking procedure for anything in the world.

He insists that a dog DOES know something has been done to his vocal chords and the frustration is very hard on his nerves. So back to the earplugs, Buster.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been running away from this problem for years and it has been making me miserable. Maybe you can help.

I am 29 now, have a lovely family and a good life. But I can't get up before a group and give my name and address without shaking for half an hour after. I know it's silly but I can't help it.

In high school and college I faked laryngitis, toothaches, anything to get out of talking before the class. The times when I could not get out of it I'd get so nervous I'd almost pass out.

I'm not shy with friends and I can entertain large groups in my home with no feelings of insecurity whatever. Please tell me what to do. -- REDDING ROSE

Dear Red Rose: If there is a Toastmaster's Club in your town, join it. I also recommend a public speaking course if one is available.

The FEAR of going to pieces finishes you before you start. The best way to conquer the fear is to meet the situation head on and say to yourself, "I will not let this defeat me." Then do the thing you are afraid of. If you simply can't make yourself do it, see a psychiatrist and work with him to remove the psychological block.

Dear Ann Landers: A boy in the senior class (age 17) worries me. Hal is very good-looking, smart, and well-liked, but he lives in a world of cameras.

Hal has never had a date in his whole life. His deplorable state can best be described by this incident. I said to him last week, "How come you never go out on dates?" He replied, "I can't afford dates. I just spent $300 on a camera."

I am not bragging, Ann, but I'm a popular girl and there isn't a boy in our class (except this nut) who wouldn't be proud to take me out. What can I do about him? -- NEW HAVEN

Dear New: It's funny that a girl can get a date with any fellow in the class, but the one SHE'S interested in is the nut who doesn't know she's alive.

Leave him alone and he may get the picture.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Three Rob Kennett Man

KENNETT -- The Dunklin County Sheriff's office is looking for three men who robbed a Kennett man Monday west of Cardwell.

Deputy Sheriff Radford Raines, who investigated the robbery with Deputy Juston Huggins of Cardwell, said the theft took place about 1 a.m.

Harold Peck Romines of Kennett told officers he was returning from Hot Springs, Ark. and stopped at the Bootheel Cafe for a few minutes. He mentioned while in the cafe that he was tired and sleepy and a man in the cafe offered to drive him to Kennett. Romaines accepted the offer.

About two miles from the cafe the man turned off on a dirt road. Romines protested that that was not the way to Kennett, but the man drove on a little way and stopped. Two men following in another car also stopped. One of the men appeared to have a Luger-type pistol, Romines said. They made Romines get out of his car and took about $150 from his pocketbook. They then searched the car and told him his keys would be in the floor board, but warned him not to try to leave until they were out of sight or they would shoot him.

Raines and Huggins questioned suspects in the Cardwell and Paragould areas, but no arrests have been made.

Romines said it was too dark to identify the other two men, but the man who offered to drive him was about five feet, eight inches tall, had dark hair and was neatly dressed.

Bluff Will Vote on Plant Expansion Bonds

POPLAR BLUFF -- The Poplar Bluff city council has approved a resolution calling for a bond issue for the expansion of the H. W. Gossard Co. plant.

Mayor Jim Ruble was authorized by the Council to sign a contract to lease with the H. W. Gossard Co., and formal application for permission to hold an election is being made with the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development.

Councilmen approved the proposed bond issue calling for an addition to the present building located on Relief Street, where it is anticipated that over 100 more persons will be employed if the plant expands.

Mayor Ruble said that the bond issue, if passed, would not result in higher taxes. The present tax rate is $2 per assessed $100 evaluation.

Harlo Dunn, Executive Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, informed members of the Council that the State Division of Health has tentatively selected a site on PP Highway for a mental heatlh clinic and has asked for additional details on the site before a decision is made.

Mayor Ruble said that the mental health clinic would employ about 40 persons when it is located here.

KENNETT -- The Dunklin County Sheriff's office is looking for three men who robbed a Kennett man Monday west of Cardwell.

Deputy Sheriff Radford Raines, who investigated the robbery with Deputy Juston Huggins of Cardwell, said the theft took place about 1 a.m.

Harold Peck Romines of Kennett told officers he was returning from Hot Springs, Ark. and stopped at the Bootheel Cafe for a few minutes. He mentioned while in the cafe that he was tired and sleepy and a man in the cafe offered to drive him to Kennett. Romaines accepted the offer.

About two miles from the cafe the man turned off on a dirt road. Romines protested that that was not the way to Kennett, but the man drove on a little way and stopped. Two men following in another car also stopped. One of the men appeared to have a Luger-type pistol, Romines said. They made Romines get out of his car and took about $150 from his pocketbook. They then searched the car and told him his keys would be in the floor board, but warned him not to try to leave until they were out of sight or they would shoot him.

Raines and Huggins questioned suspects in the Cardwell and Paragould areas, but no arrests have been made.

Romines said it was too dark to identify the other two men, but the man who offered to drive him was about five feet, eight inches tall, had dark hair and was neatly dressed.

Bluff Will Vote on Plant Expansion Bonds

POPLAR BLUFF -- The Poplar Bluff city council has approved a resolution calling for a bond issue for the expansion of the H. W. Gossard Co. plant.

Mayor Jim Ruble was authorized by the Council to sign a contract to lease with the H. W. Gossard Co., and formal application for permission to hold an election is being made with the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development.

Councilmen approved the proposed bond issue calling for an addition to the present building located on Relief Street, where it is anticipated that over 100 more persons will be employed if the plant expands.

Mayor Ruble said that the bond issue, if passed, would not result in higher taxes. The present tax rate is $2 per assessed $100 evaluation.

Harlo Dunn, Executive Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, informed members of the Council that the State Division of Health has tentatively selected a site on PP Highway for a mental health clinic and has asked for additional details on the site before a decision is made.

Mayor Ruble said that the mental health clinic would employ about 40 persons when it is located here.

Educators Praise Adult Programs

A delegation of four, a state official and three educators, reported Tuesday that the adult vocational education program in Sikeston is sound, and a step in the right director.

They spoke before Sikeston educators at the Country Club Tuesday.

This was the opinion of Lt.-Gov. Thomas Eagleton, who was placed in charge of placing the program in Missouri. He was accompanied by Dr. Chester Swanson, a former chief of staff of educational study under the late President Kennedy's, and presently on the staff of the University of California in Berkeley.

Two additional educators present were Dr. Dennis Kigin, faculty member of the University of Missouri, Columbia, and Buford Robinson, assistant commissioner of department of education in Missouri, Jefferson City.

The four men flew to Sikeston to make an inspection of the vocational education and manpower programs. The delegation visited the Airport school program in the morning, and high school shortly after noon. From here they went to Cape Girardeau for an inspection.

Robinson said: "Your program in Sikeston is one of the better ones in Missouri."

Dr. Kigin remarked: "We are well impressed with what we have seen today, and we hope all other programs in the state can give the job opportunities you are doing here."

Dr. Swanson said; "Up to now the vocational education was something many persons merely played with, but today the fast change in automation makes it necessary that it is now an important investment. The labor market does not treat the person well who does not have some training. Today, most of the states are now doing what you are doing.

"Today, a teacher must keep up with not only the textbooks, but must keep up with the labor market. We are constantly keeping in touch with the labor markets.

"We know how to train students for the college level, but for vocational programs, we must think of skills for the fast changing industrial labor forces."

"Manufacturers cannot tell us today how many persons and types of skills are needed, so we must train them in a variety of skills."

In charge of the program was Harold Vogel, school administrative assistant, and L. M. Standley, president of the school board.

Standley said:

"This is my last act on the Sikeston R-6 school board, but I wish to say that much of the present program was started five years ago. Now that the program has communitywide support, I hope this entire committee will look into the future, and will include a junior college. I was sold on the junior college program a few months ago on my visit to the University of Michigan."

He was accompanied by Dr. Chester Swanson, a former chief of staff of educational study under the late President Kennedy's, and presently on the staff of the University of California in Berkeley.

Two additional educators present were Dr. Dennis Kigin, faculty member of the University of Missouri, Columbia, and Buford Robinson, assistant commissioner of department of education in Missouri, Jefferson City.

The four men flew to Sikeston to make an inspection of the vocational education and manpower programs. The delegation visited the Airport school program in the morning, and high school shortly after noon. From here they went to Cape Girardeau for an inspection.

Robinson said: "Your program in Sikeston is one of the better ones in Missouri."

Dr. Kigin remarked: "We are well impressed with what we have seen today, and we hope all other programs in the state can give the job opportunities you are doing here."

Dr. Swanson said: "Up to now the vocational education was something many persons merely played with, but today the fast change in automation makes it necessary that it is now an important investment. The labor market does not treat the person well who does not have some training. Today, most of the states are now doing what you are doing.

"Today, a teacher must keep up with not only the textbooks, but must keep up with the labor market. We are constantly keeping in touch with the labor markets.

"We know how to train students for the college level, but for vocational programs, we must think of skills for the fast changing industrial labor forces."

"Manufacturers cannot tell us today how many persons and types of skills are needed, so we must train them in a variety of skills."

In charge of the program was Harold Vogel, school administrative assistant, and L. M. Standley, president of the school board.

Standley said:

"This is my last act on the Sikeston R-6 school board, but I wish to say that much of the present program was started five years ago. Now that the program has communitywide support, I hope this entire committee will look into the future, and will include a junior college. I was sold on the junior college program a few months ago on my visit to the University of Michigan."

Bond Scheme Promoted

ST. LOUIS -- The endless chain savings bond scheme which swept the country a few years ago, again is being promoted as a get-rich-quick lure to fool the gullible.

A typical Savings Bond endless chain letter lists the names and addresses of 11 people, and is sold person-to-person. An individual desiring to participate, pays the person whose name appears at the bottom of the list an $18.75 bond, and is required, in the presence of the seller, to mail another $18.75 bond to the first name on the list. The new participant then makes two copies of the letter and sells it to two other people. The participant is told that when his name reaches the top of the list, he will receive bonds totaling $38,400.

Postal authorities have warned that this plan is violative of both postal fraud and lottery laws, and that those who participate in such activities may be subject to criminal prosecution. Treasury Department officials advise that their Department strongly disapproves of the sale of Savings Bonds through such unlawful methods. As early as 1955, Savings Bond issuing agents were authorized to reject purchase applications where the agent has reason to believe that the applications are made in connection with a chain letter scheme. While participants in this type of chain letter scheme may think they are doing the Government a favor, they are participating in a get-rich quick endeavor, which does a distinct disservice to the Savings Bond Program.

The Post Office Department states "Such schemes are deemed to be lotteries because the question as to whether the chain will be broken is a matter of chance. So, also, is it a matter of chance whether a participant will reap anything from his participation in these schemes. A savings bond purchased in connection with such schemes is deemed under postal laws to represent a share, or interest in or dependent upon the event of the lottery, and is, therefore, non-mailable."

Further -- "The fraud aspect enters into these schemes because representations are made that the participants will eventually receive substantial rewards. In the usual case, however, the chain of gullible persons soon vanishes, and there is no way by which a new participant can determine whether there is available a reservoir of interested persons sufficient to move his name to the top of the 'list'."

Miner Will Address Press

CARBONDALE -- Paul V. Miner, assistant to the president of the Kansas City Star, will speak at the joint banquet of the Southern Illinois Editorial Association, the Southeast Missouri Press Association, and the Southern Illinois University Department of Journalism April 15 at SIU.

Bond Scheme Promoted

ST. LOUIS -- The endless chain savings bond scheme which swept the country a few years ago, again is being promoted as a get-rich-quick lure to fool the gullible.

A typical Savings Bond endless chain letter lists the names and addresses of 11 people, and is sold person-to-person. An individual desiring to participate, pays the person whose name appears at the bottom of the list an $18.75 bond, and is required, in the presence of the seller, to mail another $18.75 bond to the first name on the list. The new participant then makes two copies of the letter and sells it to two other people. The participant is told that when his name reaches the top of the list, he will receive bonds totaling $38,400.

Postal authorities have warned that this plan is violative of both postal fraud and lottery laws, and that those who participate in such activities may be subject to criminal prosecution. Treasury Department officials advise that their Department strongly disapproves of the sale of Savings Bonds through such unlawful methods. As early as 1955, Savings Bond issuing agents were authorized to reject purchase applications where the agent has reason to believe that the applications are made in connection with a chain letter scheme. While participants in this type of chain letter scheme may think they are doing the Government a favor, they are participating in a get-rich quick endeavor, which does a distinct disservice to the Savings Bond Program.

The Post Office Department states "Such schemes are deemed to be lotteries because the question as to whether the chain will be broken is a matter of chance. So, also, is it a matter of chance whether a participant will reap anything from his participation in these schemes. A savings bond purchased in connection with such schemes is deemed under postal laws to represent a share, or interest in or dependent upon the event of the lottery, and is, therefore, non-mailable."

Further -- "The fraud aspect enters into these schemes because representations are made that the participants will eventually receive substantial rewards. In the usual case, however, the chain of gullible persons soon vanishes, and there is no way by which a new participant can determine whether there is available a reservoir of interested persons sufficient to move his name to the top of the 'list'."

Miner Will Address Press

CARBONDALE -- Paul V. Miner, assistant to the president of the Kansas City Star, will speak at the joint banquet of the Southern Illinois Editorial Association, the Southeast Missouri Press Association, and the Southern Illinois University Department of Journalism April 15 at SIU.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, April 7, the 97th day of 1966. There are 268 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1788, a band of 47 men stepped ashore at what was to be Marietta, Ohio, wrote a set o' laws and established the first formally organized government in what was then the Northwest.

On this date

In 1770, the English poet, William Wordsworth, was born.

In 1798, Congress organized the territory of Mississippi, including the present state of Alabama.

In 1891, showman Phineas T. Barnum died.

In 1933, beer and wine became legal in the United States after 13 dry years.

In 1945, U.S. carrier planes sank Japan's largest battleship — the Yamato — off Kyushu island coast.

Ten years ago — A Senate select committee found that a campaign gift rejected by Republican Sen. Francis Case of South Dakota was offered to influence the senator's vote on the natural gas bill. Later, two attorneys for the Superior Oil Co. of California and the firm were indicted for alleged violation of lobby laws.

Five years ago — British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan interrupted a Washington visit with President John F. Kennedy to address a centennial audience at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, Mass.

One year ago — President Johnson, in a television-radio speech, said the United States was prepared to take part in unconditional discussions to end the war in Viet Nam.

Ritchie Joins Palsy Center

BENTON -- Raymond Ritchie, who is associated with the St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau, has joined the Cerebral Palsy Development Center staff as the physical therapist. Mrs. Wm. Miller, public relations chairman, announced.

The center is open from 1 to 3 Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

Clubs in Scott and Mississippi counties are being contacted for volunteer workers for the center so that the children enrolled can begin to participate in group therapy, Mrs. Miller said.

Children are accepted for evaluation by the development center upon the referral of a physician, she noted, and no direct fee is charged.

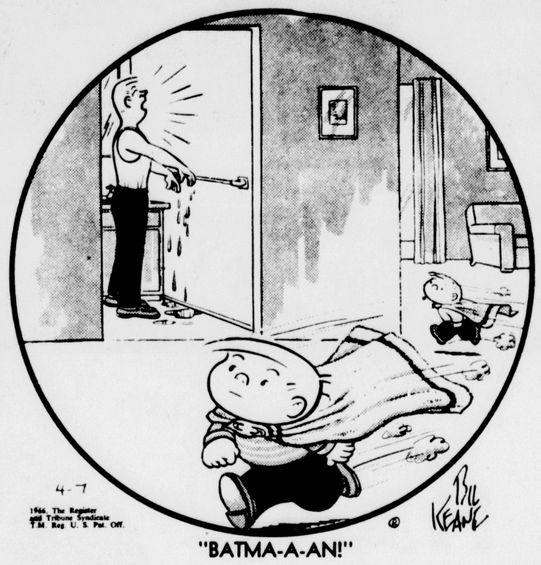

The enrollment at the center is one, with six cases that have been to the center for evaluation by Dr. Frank Tull, medical adviser. Thirty-five cases remain to report to the center in the near future for evaluation by Dr. Tull, she explained.
